STAY ON JOBS, F.D.R. URGES STEEL UNIONS

Asks Work During Strike Parleys.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Dec. 26 (AP).—President Roosevelt appealed tonight to steel workers and companies where steel production has been halted to keep working and operating under old contracts until their differences can be adjusted peacefully.

Mr. Roosevelt, attempting to end a work stoppage which already has taken 100,000 steel workers off the job, sent his appeal in identical telegrams to:

Philip Murray, chairman of the CIO; the Republic Steel company at Cleveland, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company at Youngstown, O., and G. H. Hanks, president of Taylor Wharton Iron and Steel company at Highbridge, N. J.

The disputes between steel companies and workers, Mr. Roosevelt said, must be settled under labor's national no-strike agreement by collective bargaining, conciliation, and final determination, if necessary, by the war labor board.

Continue Production.

"I therefore request the companies and the steel workers," the chief executive declared, "to continue the uninterrupted production of steel and steel products under the terms and conditions of their old contracts until the differences that now separate them are peacefully and finally resolved, with the understanding that if the new agreements include any wage adjustments, such adjustments shall be computed and applied retroactively to the date when the particular contract in question would have expired by virtue of the notice of termination under such contract."

Mr. Roosevelt warned, however, that any pay adjustments must conform with the economic stabilization act and subsequent executive orders with which he implemented the act.

Urges Speedy Settlement

Asking every one concerned to proceed " with all speed consistent with the complete and fair minded settlement of the dispute," the President said it would be unfair to workers and companies to prolong a period of uncertainty unduly.

To the employers, he held out the promise of consideration of price revisions if any retroactive wage boost worked out under the terms of the stabilization law should impose a hardship on them.

NO END IN SIGHT

An estimated 100,000 steel workers thruout the nation were idle yesterday as the result of work stoppages over a contract renewal delay between the CIO and 214 "Little Steel" industry companies. Approximately 350,000 workers are affected by the contract expiration, which became effective Friday at midnight.

The union is demanding a 17 cent an hour wage increase from the present 78 cents, which, if granted, would shatter the war labor board's "Little Steel" formula.

In the Chicago area, the strike has halted output of vital war materials at the East Chicago and South Chicago plants of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. Spokesmen for both sides admitted yesterday that no solution was in sight unless a contract is forthcoming. An estimated 9,000 men are idle at both plants.

Maintain Production.

At the Republic Steel corporation's South Chicago unit, production was being maintained, plant officials announced, altho many steel workers have refused to enter the plant without an agreement.

An official at the Youngstown plant bitterly denounced those he called responsible for the work stoppage. The strike was unexpected, he said, and came on the heels of holiday vacations. Maintenance crews have been permitted by the union to bank fires at both Youngstown plants.

James Combs, president of United Steel Workers' local at Youngstown's Indiana Harbor plant, asserted the workers were not on strike but have refused to enter the plant without a union contract. He said it was the organization's belief that its members now in the army or navy would support the union's

Strikes Find War Industry Well Stocked

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Labor troubles in the steel and railroad industries are coming to a climax at a time when peak production in these fields has been reached and when the outlook indicates a slackening in the dizzy pace of those vital war activities. Further, the nation is over the hump in production of other essential basic materials, including copper, lead, zinc, and aluminum.

These statements were made yesterday by leading Chicago industrialists, who said that strikes now will not be as serious as they would have been earlier in the war production program.

[War department reports peak in production of many major war needs passed, with many ordnance plants closed or being shifted to other production. Largest cutbacks are in small arms and ammunition, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, and high explosives. Story on page 19.]

"In total production of steel, the industry has been meeting all demands without any great exertion, altho in some lines war needs require continued heavy production," an official of one steel company said. "Even in alloy steels [fine steels used for special purposes] there is a surplus.

Peak Reached in Steel Output.

"We feel that the peak of production has been reached in the steel industry and that, with the start of the new year, output will show a progressive decline."

In producing steel at a rate of about 90,000,000 tons a year, the industry has been running at from 100 to 105 per cent of its rated capacity. The prediction is now made by steel authorities that rates will decline to from 90 to 95 per cent of capacity.

"Users of steel have reached the satisfactory position of having built up their stock piles so that they can now draw on their 'steel capital' to fill their needs" an executive said. "This means that steel mills can take it much easier in filling their orders."

Bar Supply Exceeds Demand.

There is said to be a plentiful supply of ordinary carbon steel, from which shells, bombs, and thousands of other items are made. The supply of steel bars is said to be greater than the demand.

The British are reported reliably to be reducing the size of their orders, further easing that task of the steel mills.

The demand continues heavy for plates and sheets, it was said, and rates of their production are expected to continue high. These items are used in the building of ships, landing barges, pontoons, trucks, jeeps, and other equipment essential to invasion.

"We feel that we have gone over the top in the hauling of freight," one leading railroad man said. "The nation has largely completed its great war plants, which required transportation of large amounts of heavy raw materials such as steel, concrete, timber, and other items.

Railroads Meet Heavy Task.

"The load on the railroads during this construction period was terrific, but was handled successfully. From now on, our big load will be the transportation of raw materials going into war plants and finished war products coming out.

"The outlook for some of the western roads is not as good, because they will have to carry an increasingly heavy load as the war in the Pacific gains in intensity."

The railroads have been handling in the neighborhood of 850,000 carloads weekly and only rarely have reached the 1,000,000 carload total which it was predicted that they might have to move.

Passenger Traffic to Decrease.

One railroad executive said that even in the passenger field there are indications that the load will grow lighter. As more and more men move out of the country, there will be less military traffic to be handled. The number of men traveling on leaves and furloughs will decline. As the men leave the country, the number of relatives traveling to visit them will decline.

Whipple Jacobs, president of the Belden Manufacturing company, who has been making a study of the nation's supplies of raw materials, said that we now have surpluses in many items.

"We have available more copper, lead, zinc, and aluminum than we are currently using for the manufacture of war material," Jacobs stated. He estimated that in copper alone we are now producing about 20,000 tons more—including imports—than we are using in the war.

Navy to Fight Strike Tie-Up at U. of Minn.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 26 [Special].—The navy stood ready here tonight to use navy personnel to operate buildings at the University of Minnesota in the event of a threatened strike tomorrow by 500 maintenance employes. More than 2,000 enlisted men and cadets are receiving training at the university.

Announcement of the navy's decision to operate all buildings used in the naval training program brought a statement that "the navy's strikebreaking plans do not surprise us" from Norman Carle, business agent of local 113 of the public building employes union [AFL].

Carle, who is also a Minneapolis alderman, said the navy has asked the navy mothers' club for help in the event of a strike, offering wages and transportation to mothers who would cook or do cleaning work. Carle said he expects the army, which has about 1,000 men in training on the campus, will not follow the navy's example.

Union Meets Today.

A strike vote by union members was taken several months ago and on Dec. 16 the union voted to defer the calling of the strike for 10 days pending an appeal to the war labor board for reconsideration of a previous refusal to take jurisdiction in the dispute.

The union is scheduled to meet tomorrow to vote on the question of putting the strike into immediate effect. The only issue is the establishment of collective bargaining machinery between the union and the university board of regents, which has contended it lacks legal authority to set up a bargaining committee.

University officials said tonight a walkout will affect the university campus in Minneapolis, the university hospital, which has 800 beds in its various units; the university farm in St. Paul, and a number of public buildings in the Twin Cities owned by the university.

Navy Explains Stand.

The navy's intentions were outlined in a statement released by the naval publicity office here over the signature of Lt. Comdr. Roger Q. White of the 9th naval district headquarters, Great Lakes, Ill.

"The navy has no interest in the merits of the dispute," the statement said. "It cannot be placed in the position either of aiding or breaking a strike. The navy, however, must continue to use the facilities of the university for its training program. Accordingly, in the event of a strike, the navy will supply personnel to operate the buildings which are necessary to its program."

The statement contained a list of dormitories, mess halls, class rooms and laboratories which "will continue to operate solely for the use of navy personnel," and said that the navy will operate two central heating plants if necessary.

"The navy also will facilitate in every way possible operation of university hospitals, which of course must be maintained because of present and future illnesses among navy personnel," the statement said.

Limited to Hospital Service.

"Because of the general shortage of hospital facilities and for humanitarian reasons the navy will not insist upon evacuation of civilians who are patients in the hospital, but the use of the enlisted navy personnel will be limited to hospital service for personnel of the navy."

There was no mention in the navy statement of the status of army personnel at the university.

The dispute between the university and its maintenance employes dates back to June, 1942, when the union opened negotiations with the board of regents seeking a contract and grievance machinery. A strike lasting a day and a half was called in October, 1942.

Chicago Man Found Slain; Wife Is Shot

Elkhorn, Wis., Dec. 26 [Special].—Oliver S. Nickels, 66 years old, a resident of the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago and said to be a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, was found dead with a bullet wound in his right temple in the basement of his summer cottage near here tonight.

Discovery of his body was made by deputy sheriffs who responded to a call for help reported by the Elkhorn telephone exchange as having been received from a phone in the Nickels home. The officers found Mrs. Nickels unconscious on the living room floor near the telephone. She had been wounded in the head with a revolver bullet.

Wife May Recover.

Mrs. Nickels was taken to the Walworth county hospital here and physicians said they believe she has a good chance of recovery, altho she had not revived sufficiently to give an account of the tragedy.

Sheriff George O'Brien said reports from his deputies indicate that Nickels shot his wife in the basement of the home and then turned the gun on himself. A trail of blood showed that the wounded woman had crawled up the basement stairs and had rested upon a bed for a short time before reaching the telephone and calling for help, he said.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Pramer said the Nickels family arrived at their cottage about 3 p. m. today by automobile. The cottage is located in Buena Vista park on the western end of Lake Geneva.

Clyde Pontius, a resident of Buena Vista park, told deputies he saw Mr. and Mrs. Nickels drive away in their car about 4 p. m. and saw them return about an hour and a half later.

There were no lights in the cottage when officers arrived and it was discovered the electricity had been disconnected for the winter.

Coroner Robert Betzer said he will probably open an inquest tomorrow but does not expect to complete his inquiry until Mrs. Nickels is able to testify.

SANTA REALLY COMES TO CHINA —BRINGING BEER

SOMEWHERE IN CHINA, Dec. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—Santa Claus has arrived by air over the Himalayas and is distributing Christmas packages and mail to American units in China. Several tons of gifts and mail have been delivered and more are expected.

One of the biggest holiday events was the translation of a sudsy rumor into fact—each officer and man received several cans of the first issue of beer in China.

Every unit has arranged a Christmas program. The Red Cross and the army special services have arranged Christmas parties.

NAZI WARSHIP SENT DOWN OFF NORWAY COAST

Berlin Admits Loss in 'Heroic' Fight.

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP).—The German battleship Scharnhorst was sunk on the Murmansk route thru the Barents sea off North Cape late today by British home fleet units protecting a Russian convoy, the admiralty announced tonight.

Adm. Bruce Fraser.

This blow at Hitler's waning sea power was announced in a bulletin which said:

"This afternoon the German battleship Scharnhorst was brought into action by units of the home fleet under command of Adm. Bruce Fraser which was covering a north Russian convoy. The Scharnhorst was sunk this evening off North Cape."

Tho the admiralty announcement gave no details of the engagement, the Nazis in admitting the loss of the 26,000 ton vessel indicated hers was a fighting end.

"A Heroic Battle."

A German news agency dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said the Scharnhorst went down after expending all her ammunition in "a heroic battle" with other Nazi naval forces against superior British formations.

"The engagement lasted a considerable time," the Nazi announcement said. "Considerable damage was inflicted on the convoy and on the British escort units."

Launched Oct. 3, 1936, as one of the most powerful units in the German fleet, with nine 11 inch guns as her main armament, the Scharnhorst was put into service Jan. 7, 1939. Normally the ship carried a crew of 1,461. In addition to her 11 inch guns, the Scharnhorst carried 12 5.9-inch guns and many smaller weapons.

Hunted by Allies.

The Scharnhorst, together with her sister ship, the Gneisenau, had often been hunted by allied bombers. She had been reported as hiding in Alten fjord near Hammerfest in northern Norway for many months.

Last May an allied fleet under Adm. Fraser cruised between North Cape and Bear Island, below Spitzbergen, in an effort to lure her and the giant 40,000 to 42,000 Tirpitz from their havens, but the attempt failed.

A task force of the United States fleet commanded by Rear Adm. Olaf M. Hustvedt operated with the British on that occasion. Whether American units were with the British this time was not disclosed.

Escaped Thru Channel.

One of the most dramatic incidents in the Scharnhorst's career occurred the night of Feb. 12, 1942. Thru fog the Scharnhorst, the Gneisenau, and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen headed into the Atlantic from the harbor at Brest, France, where they had been repeatedly bombed by the R. A. F. Doubling back into the English channel, the three vessels steamed thru Dover strait into the North Sea.

For Adm. Fraser the sinking of the Scharnhorst came as welcome revenge. On June 9, 1940, the Scharnhorst teamed with the Gneisenau to sink the British aircraft carrier Glorious off Norway. Fraser was once captain of the Glorious.

The sinking of the Scharnhorst reduced Germany's naval strength almost to the vanishing point. A British report last October indicated all other major German surface craft were disabled.

FINDS JULIANA LIVES LIKE ANY OTHER MOTHER

BY MARCIA WINN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 26.—The only mark that distinguishes the gray stone house at 541 Acacia avenue from its neighbors in Rockcliffe, a hilly suburb of Ottawa, is the placard at the entrance to the driveway.

Princess Juliana.

At the end of the brief driveway, in a rented 10 room house, and surrounded by rented furniture, lives Juliana, crown princess of the Netherlands, and her three small blonde daughters.

Of the various members of European royalty who have made their homes in North America since Hitler overran Europe, Juliana unquestionably is the most democratic. She lives simply and in freedom.

Children Go to School.

Her two oldest children, neither of whom has ever been called princess, attend public school. She is accessible to all callers. She drops in casually on friends and neighbors. She skis on neighboring slopes with her children. She holds open house any and every day of the week for members of the Dutch merchant marine, all 20,000 of whom are godfathers to her baby daughter, Margriet, now 11 months old.

Eventually Juliana will succeed to the throne of the Netherlands, wherever that throne may be, but she will never wear a crown. She will have no coronation. She will have no crown jewels. She will be sworn in, taking the oath of fealty and service—to her people.

The first impression a stranger gets of Juliana is of a gracious, sweet faced young woman with startling, light eyes, whose pictures do her an injustice. She is neither fat nor dowdy. She seems slender and of average height, and on the day of this interview wore a shirtwaist dress of soft blue wool jersey.

Disarmingly Frank.

She seems shy and at times terribly sad. In these moments her face assumes the stern calm that characterizes her mother, Wilhelmina [to whom, incidentally, she refers simply as "my mother"]. You realize then how naturally she would say what she said when she first arrived here in 1940, those phrases which since have become a Dutch aphorism:

"There is one favor I would like to ask of you. Do not give me your pity. Never speak to me of pity. Pity is for the weak, and our terrible fate has made us stronger than ever before."

Her frankness is disarming. In a conversation of more than an hour she sometimes groped for a word, but she neither hedged nor hesitated. She made it quickly apparent that her three consuming interests are her people in occupied Holland, her family, and the Dutchmen now fighting in the air, on the sea, and on the land. This triumvirate comes in no particular order.

Preferred London.

The pin she wears may be an indication of these. The name of her baby, Margriet Francisca [Dutch for "daisy of freedom"] may be another. The pin is a silver replica of the margriet, a white field daisy similar to our Shasta daisy, which blooms in the fields of Holland in May. The fields were white with daisies when the Nazis invaded the low countries, and Juliana wears the margriet as a memorial to the Dutch people who have died under Nazi oppression. The 20,000 merchant marine godfathers of her Margriet wear it on their uniforms.

When asked why she makes her residence in Canada rather than in the United States, Juliana's reply is with lifted eyebrows.

"Why, Canada was a belligerent when I came over," she says. "It was in 1940."

Wanted to Stay with Mother.

She says she did not want to come. She wanted to stay in London with her mother, the Dutch government in exile, and her husband, Prince Bernhard, who serves as liaison officer between the Dutch forces and those of the allies.

"But London was not considered safe for the children," she explains. "My mother and our government wanted them to be safe. It is on account of them that I crossed the Atlantic."

"But I feel very much at home here," she will quickly assure you. "I think the resemblance to Holland

REDS ROLL BACK NAZIS 25 MILES IN NEW DRIVE

LONDON, Dec. 27 [Monday]—(AP).—Russia's 1st Ukraine army has rolled back German troops 25 miles on a 50 mile front in the Kiev bulge, killing 15,000 of them and routing 10 enemy divisions fighting to hold the approaches to Zhitomir on the road to Poland, a Moscow war bulletin disclosed today.

To the north the soviet 1st Baltic army reached a point within eight miles of Vitebsk and all but choked off every Nazi supply or escape route serving the city, the bulletin said.

More than 3,600 Germans fell on the icy battlefields rimming Vitebsk, boosting enemy casualties in Russia to more than 20,000 in three days.

210 Villages Won.

Over 150 villages and hamlets were taken in the drive toward Zhitomir, and 60 were taken on the Vitebsk front, Moscow said.

Approximately 150,000 German troops were routed by Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's forces in the Kiev bulge. The Russians, making a comeback in an area where they had lost ground during six weeks of fierce Nazi counter-attacks were believed to be threatening the Korosten-Zhitomir railway, 85 miles west of Kiev and only 60 miles from the old Polish frontier.

Radomysl, near where the offensive was launched, fell to the Russians. It is 55 miles west of Kiev and 28 miles northeast of Zhitomir. Brusilov and Kornin, 37 and 39 miles east and southwest of Zhitomir, respectively, also were captured.

Nazis Say Reds Repulsed.

The Germans said they had checked soviet penetrations "in the Zhitomir battle area," and spoke once more of "superior forces" attacking their lines.

On the White Russian front Vitebsk appeared to be doomed. The Baltic army under the Armenian general, Ivan Bagramian, reached points within 15 miles of Vitebsk on the northwest, less than that distance on the north, and only eight miles on the east. The army also was five miles from the last axis held highway running south to Orsha. Late Moscow dispatches said the enemy was withdrawing into Vitebsk so fast that it was a virtual rout.

Vitebsk's fall would imperil the entire German line in White Russia, opening the way for a soviet drive toward Poland and the Baltic states.

Hurl Reserves into Battle.

The German high command said reserves had been hurled into battle on the Vitebsk front, where "attempts by the soviets to extend their places of penetration were frustrated."

The Berlin radio also announced fighting on the intermediate front between Vitebsk and Zhitomir in the Zhlobin area and southwest of Mogilev. The Germans declared the Russians had been held in these sectors and even had lost some ground.

Altho the Russians ignored the Dnieper bend sector in their bulletin, the Germans said soviet troops had renewed their attacks on the German held bridgehead near Nikopol, on the lower Dnieper river. These attacks failed, Berlin said, and the Russians were declared to have lost 71 tanks.

BEDAUX BEING HELD BY ARMY INCOMMUNICADO

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26 [Special].—Charles E. Bedaux, French-born inventor of a speedup industrial system and friend of Edward Windsor, governor of the Bahamas, is being held incommunicado until further notice, Col. Charles G. Mettler, in command of military intelligence here, reported today.

Bedaux, an international "mystery" man, was arrested last January in North Africa on a charge of trading with the enemy. He was flown from there last week, accompanied by army officials.

Immigration officials said he had no passport, and without disclosing the military interest in Bedaux, said the man of "mystery" had been given a hearing and Washington officials will decide if passport rules may be waived or if he should be given an opportunity to secure his passport.

ROOSEVELT SEEN AS MEDIATOR FOR REDS, POLES

Report Polish Premier on Way to America.

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP).—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in exile was reliably said today to be en route to Washington, D. C., for consultations with President Roosevelt who may be asked to mediate the entire soviet-Polish problem.

Polish Premier Mikolajczyk.

Mikolajczyk was reported to have left for the United States after receiving a full report from Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on the Teheran conference and Russia's conditions for restoring diplomatic relations with the Polish government. Relations were broken by Russia last April 26, after the Kremlin charged the Polish government with asking an investigation of German reports that the Russians had executed 10,000 Poles near Smolensk.

"No Insoluble Differences."

The disclosure of the premier's departure followed President Roosevelt's prediction on Friday that as a result of the Teheran conference no insoluble differences would arise between Britain, the United States, and the soviet union.

The Sunday Dispatch, however, predicted with seeming authority that Poland expected shortly to join the 20 year, Russian-Czecho-Slovak friendship and mutual assistance pact which was signed on Dec. 12 in Moscow in the presence of Marshal Stalin and Eduard Benes, president of the provisional Czecho-Slovak government.

Stipulations of Both Sides.

The newspaper said these were the stipulations of both countries for restoration of diplomatic relations:

RUSSIA—The soviets are ready to hand back to Poland the forest land between Lwow in southeastern Poland and Wilno [Vilna] in northeastern Poland. This would give back to Poland most of the eastern part of the country occupied by Russia in 1939. The Russians insist, however, on keeping the southern Polish Ukraine, including the capital, Lwow, but are willing to compensate the Poles with East Prussia and part of Silesia, territory that is now German. They also are demanding the dismissal of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, commander in chief of Polish forces in exile.

POLAND—The Polish government has replied that it can not accept decisions made by force and has suggested leaving the frontier questions open until after the war. It has refused to dismiss Sosnkowski, both because he is supported by the Polish army and because "one state cannot allow another to dictate regarding ministerial personnel which is an internal matter."

COMMANDO RAID ON COAST WIPED OUT, SAY NAZIS

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP).—A Christmas eve British-French commando raid against the German channel defenses was announced by the German high command today. At the same time the Nazis nervously predicted the allied invasion is near.

Indicating that the raiding party got ashore on the French coast, bristling with rocket-gun emplacements, the German bulletin said the commandos were detected as they "tried to approach our wire entanglements and were wiped out."

The German announcement, coming on the heels of Gen. Eisenhower's designation as the allied chieftain who will lead the invasion, aroused considerable speculation, altho not confirmed by any official allied quarter.

It is possible the operation was one of the many swift raids that may be expected as allied invasion preparations near the zero hour.

PARTY HONORS PILOT WHO HIT JAPS 58 TIMES

Lt. Leonard C. Willer, 23 years old, a Liberator bomber pilot who recently came home from China, where he flew for nine months with the 14th air force of the United States army, was feted by relatives and friends last night at a Christmas party in the home of his uncle, James Hunt, 4313 North Ashland avenue.

Lt. Leonard C. Willer

"The various crews I flew completed 58 missions against the Japanese in occupied China," Lt. Willer said. "And we always got back without a scratch. The Japs are stubborn fighters and resisted us on every flight, but the Liberator was tough enough to take everything they could throw, and still come back for more."

Lt. Willer, who is visiting at his former home at 153 North Edgewood avenue, La Grange, enlisted Jan. 15, 1942, and was commissioned nine months later.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS STOLEN.

Christmas gifts valued at $39 and two envelopes each containing a $5 bill, were stolen yesterday by thieves who broke into his automobile parked in front of his home, E. J. Hanson, 5330 Blackstone avenue, told police.

YANKS' ASSAULT WINS HILLTOP IN CASSINO SECTOR

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Dec. 26 (AP).—Neither giving nor receiving Christmas day quarter, American 5th army forces assaulted two Nazi hilltop strongholds on the fringes of the plain leading to Rome and captured one dominating the fortified village of San Vittore, allied headquarters announced today. The other attack still is continuing.

Symbols denote towns bombed by allies.

On the Adriatic end of the line 8th army troops fought fiercely in the streets for the seventh day for the last remaining corner of the port of Ortona. The 8th army also pressed advances beyond the Ortona-Orsogna road, taking a ridge dominating the village of Crecchio, about six miles inland, and capturing the town of Ariella, two miles southwest of Ortona.

Blast Bolzano Rail Yards.

Heavy bombers took the air to blast the Bolzano rail yards in northern Italy, 30 miles south of Brenner pass, and barracks and an air field at Vicenza, 40 miles west of Venice. Medium bombers struck at the main station at Pisa as well as rail targets at Porta Nuova, a suburb of Pisa.

The hilltop which the 5th army took was Mount Samucro which commands the heavily fortified village of San Vittore, six miles from Cassino.

[Previous dispatches from allied headquarters had reported the 5th army's capture of Mount Samucro. There was no immediate amplification of today's report. It possibly could mean Mount Samucro had been lost to the Germans in an unannounced counter-attack.]

With Mount Samucro in their hands the Americans hold high ground due east of San Vittore and about a mile and a half northwest of ruined San Pietro.

The Americans stormed numerous dug-in machine gun emplacements on the sides of Mount Samucro before seizing control of the strategic slope. Along the entire front patrols were active. On Christmas eve patrols from the 5th army penetrated German lines and destroyed a large enemy ammunition dump west of Rocca.

Continue Fighting in Rain.

The location of the other attack was not disclosed. A military commentator at allied headquarters said operations still were in progress amid continuing rain.

Operations along the 8th army front were hampered by rain and stormy weather. Troops in the central sector consolidated gains made in the previous 24 hours.

The bitter struggle for Ortona went on with Canadians still striving to dislodge stubborn Nazi defenders from one corner of the town where their tanks were imbedded in ruins. The Germans have been ordered to hold on at all costs. Nazi troops were dying rather than retreating. All sections of the landing installations at Ortona have been blown up in the course of the bitter fighting.

Aim at Rail Supply Lines.

Light bombers operating ahead of the 5th army front bombed a bridge at Pontecervo near Cassino but other tactical flights in this section were washed out by bad weather.

ILLNESS FORCES CANADIAN ARMY CHIEF TO REST

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 27 [Monday]—(AP).—Lt. Gen. Andrew G. L. McNaughton, who has commanded the Canadian army in Britain for more than four years, has been forced by ill health to take a long rest, which will prevent him from leading the Canadians in the invasion of western Europe, it was disclosed today. He is 56 years old.

Lt. Gen. McNaughton.

Lt. Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of staff of the Canadian army in Ottawa, is to become acting commander, taking over McNaughton's duties until a successor is appointed.

PARTISAN BANDS BREACH KING PIN BALKAN RAILWAY

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP).—Jugo-Slav Partisan bands have smashed their way thru German tanks guarding the Zagreb-Belgrade road to breach that king pin of Germany's Balkan communications in a score of places, an army of liberation war bulletin announced today.

Four tanks were destroyed in the action, said the broadcast bulletin from the headquarters of Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz, which added that the railroad was cut at Jorjane and at several points between Osijek and Khakovo.

Some 100 miles to the east in Serbia, where Tito recently reported the hurried arrival of five fresh divisions [60,0000 to 75,000 troops] to bolster the invaders, the bulletin said hard fighting was in progress.

Bitter battles were reported from the Duvno-Livno sector of Bosnia as well as eastern and central areas of the province. An enemy cavalry squadron was reported defeated in the central area.

Partisans Rely on Reds.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 26.—That the Communist party is the dominating influence in the Partisan movement of Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz is indicated by a number of factors connected with the campaign in Jugo-Slavia.

Marshal Tito himself is secretary general of the Communist party in Jugo-Slavia and constantly stresses the part the Communists are playing in the fighting of the people's army of liberation." In addition, several of his ministers are members of the Communist party and even some of his non-Communist officials are decidedly pro-Russian in their leanings.

The people's army, with its political commissars, is organized along the lines of the Red army of Russia. Certain operational tactics also suggest Russian influence.

Red Cross Ships Vitamin Tablets, Milk to India

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—The American Red Cross is about to ship 500,000 pounds of evaporated milk and 2,000,000 multi-vitamin tablets for the victims of the Indian famine, it was announced today. The milk represents a million quarts and the vitamin tablets are enough for 10,000 children for three months, officials said.

CARRIER PLANES SINK DESTROYER AND 2 JAP SHIPS

2d Warship Damaged Off New Ireland.

ADVANCED HDQ., New Guinea, Dec. 27 [Monday]—(AP).—The sinking of a Japanese destroyer and two cargo vessels by allied carrier-based planes at Kavieng, New Ireland, and capture of an enemy supply base at Wandokai, on the Huon peninsula of New Guinea, was announced by Gen. MacArthur today.

Carrier planes of Adm. William F. Halsey's South Pacific forces roared over Kavieng harbor Christmas morning to strike at Japanese shipping in the harbor. Besides the three vessels sunk, one enemy destroyer, a patrol boat and several small craft were damaged.

An attack on Kavieng by navy Catalinas and Liberator bombers already had started in enemy supply dumps fires visible for 20 miles, and had damaged a Japanese gunboat.

Buka Base Shelled.

Halsey's surface ships staged a vigorous attack on enemy installations in the Buka and Bonis areas on Bougainville, in the Solomons Friday, pumping 7,500 shells into airdrome and supply points and starting many fires. Spotter planes observed numerous explosions after the shelling, indicating an ammunition dump had been hit.

Two more aerial blows at Rabaul, Japanese base on the northeastern coast of New Britain, also were announced, revealing that the Japanese have lost 71 fighter planes and probably 19 more in attempting to block the allies in a total of three raids on Rabaul. The attacks cost the allies 15 planes.

Vunakarau airdrome was the focal point of the assault. The enemy intercepting force was badly mauled, losing 28 fighters with six more probably downed, while the allied loss was seven fighter planes.

Capture Jap Supplies.

Liberator heavies again attacked Rabaul Saturday and were intercepted by 50 to 60 enemy planes. Thirteen of the enemy were shot down in that meeting, with seven more probably destroyed, while the American loss was four fighters.

Australian troops in capturing Wandokai gathered in a large supply of ammunition and other material, including artillery. The taking of the village was preceded by sharp fighting and artillery exchanges. Australian casualties were described as light.

Allied medium and attack bombers returned again to Cape Gloucester, heavily pounded base on the western tip of New Britain, to drop 294 tons of bombs. This area has been hit by more than 3,400 tons of explosives so far this month.

At Arawe, New Britain, American troops which invaded the area Dec. 15 contacted the Japanese in minor patrol clashes.

Transport Probably Sunk.

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 26 (AP).—Continuing aerial smashes against the Japanese in the mid-Pacific, army and navy Liberator bombers have probably sunk a small enemy transport and set installations afire in the Marshall Islands, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today. His bulletin said:

"Army heavy bombers of the 7th A. A. F. attacked Wotje on Dec. 24. Several fires were started.

"Army light bombers of the 7th A. A. F., escorted by army Airacobras, raided Mille on Dec. 25. Two of our bombers were slightly damaged.

"A navy search Liberator of fleet wing 2 made a low altitude attack on two small transports near Kwajalein on Dec. 24, probably sinking one transport.

EUROPE'S SKIES CLEAR IN 2 DAY AIR WAR TRUCE

The greatest aerial offensive of history, aimed at destroying Berlin and German industry, and perhaps the rocket gun installations on the French coast was due to resume at any moment, however.

United States 8th air force heavy bombardment units have advanced daylight bombing technique, as prophesied last September by Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commander of army air forces, to such an extent that they are smashing German targets in cloudy weather.

5 Allied Ships, 9 Escort Vessels Sunk, Nazis Say

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP).—German U-boats have sunk five allied ships totaling 34,500 tons and destroyed nine destroyers and escort vessels from convoy escorts and submarine chaser flotillas in action in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean in the last few days, the German war bulletin said today. A sixth ship was reported torpedoed. There was no allied confirmation of the claim.

DOCTOR SWIMS TO AID WOUNDED YANKS AT ARAWE

BY ROBERT EUNSON.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—Wounded men brought from the shores of Arawe, the allied invasion bridgehead on New Britain Island, still are talking about the incredible feat of Capt. Charles P. Wickard of Little Rock, Ark.

Wickard, an army doctor, swam among the battered rubber invasion boats administering first aid to the wounded.

He saw to it that they kept in the boats and gave suffering soldiers shots of morphine. The boys say he seemed never to tire, and when most of the wounded were brought here, he remained at his post on New Britain.

Rockford Yank Hit.

Pvt. Ralph Hollabeck, Franklin, Ind., said:

"I don't think any one in my boat was killed. I was hit in the arm by shrapnel and two others were wounded."

"I fired a full drum from my tommygun and most of the second drum of .50 shells before they hit me in the right shoulder," said Corp. Joe Veroni, Rockford, Ill. "I never felt any pain and thought I had been struck by the helmet of the man back of me. Then I reached back and felt blood. I stayed in the boat. We paddled with our hands and rifle butts to get away."

Unwounded Push Boats.

Pvt. Joseph A. Nicoteri, Jessup, Pa., had a large piece of shrapnel in his forearm. "I had jumped out of my boat when it was raked with machine gun fire and I was hit when I grabbed for the side of another craft. We put our really badly wounded on top—guys with legs blown off and things like that. The slightly wounded like me just hung on to the sides. The ones who were not hit swam along and pushed the boats."

FINDS JULIANA LIVES LIKE ANY OTHER MOTHER

Have Much in Common.

"You always hear so many stories that America is so big, and when you come, it is big. It is impressive. But the people are awfully friendly and open, and we have much in common--common ideas, the way we are educated, the democratic outlook, the same ideas I should say on culture and civilized life, whatever you want to call it."

Juliana has been here three years now and has made several trips to the United States, one as far west as Omaha. Asked what aspects of American life she would like to see transplanted to post-war Holland, she made one revealing exclamation:

"Fruit juices!

"But mostly we have the same things," she added in more sombre vein. "It is hard to mention something that would be alien at home. In every country there are things you admire very much and say, 'Isn't it lovely?' These generally are things inherent to that type of people, things that to use you'd have to change the character of the people, slight as the differences are.

Keeps in Close Touch.

"For instance, your historical spirit of daring and enterprise on a large scale. It is interwoven with your history and blended with your character. But in Holland there are no new parts you can go to except to the reclaimed land of the Zuyder Zee. We have no outposts. It has all been lived on so long. We have big industries, of course, but it isn't what I mean. They have a tendency to spread internationally."

Altho as crown princess Juliana has no official function in the Dutch government, she apparently spends what time is not devoted to her three children to intense study of every word coming out of Holland, much of which is brought to her directly by escaped Dutchmen. She has strong convictions about the Holland that will arise after the war, and clings to them despite her belief that the Nazis are butchering those of Holland's young people who seem potential leaders.

"I think the Holland that is developing will be a fine achievement," she says slowly. "The terrific strain people have lived thru has made a fraternization of all groups. Everybody helps everybody.

"The suffering is so great that the unity is—what do you say?—equal to it. Our underground papers show this. They have the right ideas about the future, about the principles we are fighting for—freedom, democracy, all that. They have a unity of purpose.

A Great Brotherhood.

"We are very great individualists, and every one has his own meaning. In Holland every one always has been entitled to his own opinion. We never said what somebody else said. That was in our blood. But now the complement of that, a great brotherhood, has come into being.

"People now know what are the small things that don't count. If everything is taken away from you, you know proportion, don't you?

"This is the first time we have ever been poor, impoverished. Holland hasn't suffered this way since the Spanish war [Holland's war for independence from Spain, 1568 to 1648, led by William the Silent, after which Holland was a republic until 1813].

"We had a great beautiful period at its conclusion, a period of literature, commerce, and art—Rembrandt. Of course, history never repeats itself. It does and doesn't, but after all the terrible suffering now, we hope a very fine period will arise.

Despotism Increasing.

"You know, of course, that German despotism is increasing all the time. They now are feeling they are at bay. That is obvious from all the signs we get. They are getting worse.

"But our people have learned much. They have learned the technique of hindering the Nazis without taking unnecessary risks, because the Germans have taken all their potential leaders. They are taking the younger people now, knowing very well that in them lies the strength of the nation."

"I received word yesterday that my cousin is dead," her private secretary, Willem van Tets, interposed.

"How?" Juliana asked quickly.

Mr. Van Tets shrugged.

"We had word a while ago that he was very thin," he said simply.

Red Cross Now Helping.

"Health conditions," she continued, "are terrible. There is a terrific epidemic of diphtheria, and diseases like tuberculosis are shooting up. There is little medicine, and many doctors have been arrested. And the Germans have stolen so much. . . ."

"Looted," suggested Mr. Van Tets.

"Yes," she agreed. "Looted is a better word. Plundering.

"However, the American Red Cross now is helping us send in medicines and vitamins thru the international Red Cross. Of course, that is invaluable."

Juliana is president of the Netherlands Red Cross, but as only the international Red Cross can work in occupied countries, she has set up a London committee of which she is president. She works thru this and thru American, Canadian, and other branches of it.

"About the Red Cross in Holland now," she observed, "we know very little. What they do I don't know. I," and she smiled sadly, "am disposed of long ago by the Germans. I am fired by them, but I think it is more of a compliment than anything else."

A Home for Dutchmen.

As one with no function in the Dutch government, Juliana said she could not discuss such matters as Holland's post-war plans or relations, but she chatted freely of the time she devotes to Dutch flyers being trained in Canada and in Jackson, Miss., [most of whom escaped from the Netherlands East Indies and are being sent back to the Pacific] and of her work with the Dutch merchant marine, members of which drift up here by twos and tens to sit down with her, have a glass of sherry, and look at their godchild.

"It is a home they know," she says. "Their families are all in Holland. They haven't been home for four years now. They have no way of relaxation like people in unoccupied countries have, altho many people try to provide something for them. It's never the same.

"They have changed ships and survived ships many times and are in permanent danger. They carry this on. They are our hope."

Not long ago she visited the Jackson, Miss., flyers on a trip to Dutch Guiana, her first visit to any part of the Dutch kingdom. ["Possessions," she corrects you swiftly, "is a word we never use."]

Meets All Nationalities.

"Always before," she says, "I had been planning to go to the East Indies, but it took about half a year, and always there was an economic crisis, or I was getting married or I had babies, and when I first came here, it was not safe to go anywhere."

There she found Creoles, Indians, "What do you call the black man—Negroes?", about 30,000 Javanese, Hindustanis, a few Chinese, and a few white families, the headman of one Indian tribe making a two week safari over water and thru jungle to see her. She found them all "charming and awfully warm for Holland."

Several statements in the press annoy Juliana. One is the belief that she has a lady-in-waiting.

Answers Queen's Critics.

"I have no lady-in-waiting," she says firmly. Mme. Martino Roell, an old friend who has a daughter, Renee, the age of Beatrix, the oldest little princess, lives with her, as does Miss Sophie Feith, a noblewoman who is also a trained nurse and cares for the children when ill. As every one else up here, all have just emerged from having influenza.

"Then there is that nonsense people say about us," Juliana adds. "We've had on the average of four Americans a year offering to sell us their estates in the United States—when every penny counts.

"About my mother they say such nonsense. They say my mother is very stuffy and conservative, and she is awfully open minded.

"They say she always bosses me. She'd rather burn her fingers than do that. It's always like that. They say my mother has chosen the names of my children, and she couldn't possibly do that. She leaves every one alone. Imagine people saying she owns an apartment building in Washington. Sometimes it makes you mad the things you read."

No visit with Juliana in her cluttered, tiny study is complete without a sudden splatter of footsteps and the entrance of two blue-eyed, flaxen haired little girls in smocked blue dresses, a black cocker spaniel romping at their heels.

Beatrix, who will be 6 in January, is gay, talkative, and utterly un-self-conscious. Irene, who is 4, is shy. They speak exquisite English tinged with American idiom, and carry on an animated conversation with the visitor.

Her Doll Gets Tired.

Beatrix, having whispered for her mother's permission, then races away to return with a new doll. Breathlessly she explains its charms—its yellow hair "like mine," its blue eyes "that close," its squeaking ma-ma, its ruffled white organdy dress that she [Beatrix] washed. She is as proud of the doll as if it were the most beautiful doll in the world, which it is by no means, and refuses to put it to bed at night for fear of rumpling its cheap little dress.

"Poor thing," she sighs in the genuine sorrow of childhood, "she must get very tired too. I have a feeling she plays with the things on my night table while I'm asleep."

Then, with a slight frown, "I suppose some American dolls sit up all night too?"

"O, yes," she was assured. "Many."

With this assurance of American participation in the only kingdom she now knows—that of childhood—she raced away for luncheon.

You get the impression that the placard on the driveway—beyond which the so-called lady in waiting was hanging clothes on the line—was right. In the rented House of Orange children play. Neither they nor their rather lonely young mother seem here for pity.

The Neighbors By George Clark

"Step up and give your orders, ladies. It won't do you no good to hang back waiting for a confidential talk with me."

TYPHUS SPREADS IN NAPLES; BAR YANKS FROM CITY

NAPLES, Italy, Dec. 26 (AP).—A tenfold increase of typhus fever in Naples since October when the allies occupied the city brought an order today from Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark closing the city to all 5th army troops except units based here.

At the same time army medical authorities and allied military government health officers launched a campaign to check the disease, instituting measures designed to bring preventive assistance to the city's million or more inhabitants.

The chief surgeon for the 5th army said not one American or British soldier so far has contracted the fever. But 250 cases have been registered so far among Italian civilians. He said, "Existing conditions in the city are ideal for the development of a large scale epidemic of this serious disease."

Gen. Clark's order emphasized the "extreme seriousness of the situation," and warned that severe penalties will be ready against violators of the new restrictions.

City Placed "Off Limits."

The order said "until the effectiveness of the measures now operative and others contemplated for control of this disease in the Naples area is demonstrated the city of Naples is placed 'off limits' temporarily to 5th army troops."

No person will be admitted to the Naples area except on urgent business, it was announced. In such cases special passes will be issued.

The mortality has been approximately 25 per cent among reported cases, staff officers said. To combat the spread of the fever medical officers have organized "dusting squads" at railway stations, all army depots and all other places of public congestion where they provide medicated powder capable of killing the lice that transmit the disease.

The work is being done under the direction of Col. Richard Arnost of Oldhams, Va., surgeon for the Naples base section, and Col. W. W. Crighton of the British army. They said supplies of typhus serum are insufficient for the whole civilian population, and that the dusting methods are as effective as serum.

Increased by Overcrowding.

The chief factors in the rapid increase of cases since October are believed to be overcrowding as a result of the destruction of homes, apartments, and hotels by bombing and by demolitions by the Germans as they were preparing to retreat, and damage to the city's sanitation system.

Prior to the allied entry into Naples the Germans systematically dynamited water mains and sewage canals and confiscated or destroyed all medical stocks they could find in Italian hospitals and dispensaries.

At the same time they burned and demolished with explosives all but one major hotel and a large number of dwellings. Hundreds of the city's poorest people have since been living in caves and air raid shelters which are believed to have been focal points from which the fever began to spread.

Portugal Sets Free All Its Political Prisoners

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 26 (AP).—All Portuguese political prisoners, several hundred in number, were freed by government order yesterday and only "a number of prisoners charged with social crimes" now remain in Portugal's prisons, it was announced today.

MIKADO WARNS DIET THE WAR IS GETTING SERIOUS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Emperor Hirohito of Japan, formally opening the 84th session of the diet in Tokio, solemnly warned yesterday that "the war situation is most serious," United States monitors reported in recording a Tokio broadcast. The imperial rescript was quoted as saying:

"The warriors who represent us are fighting bravely and strenuously by enduring severe cold and braving intense heat under clouds of war thousands of miles away, and are further enhancing their military prestige. Responding well to this, our subjects are exerting their efforts in production and all alike are sincerely engaging in service. In this manner the alliance between the empire and our allies is growing stronger. Deeply rejoice over this.

"The offensive-defensive battles between us and our enemies are growing more acute now and the war situation is most serious. Accordingly the people, all with the same spirit, must crush the inordinate ambitions of the enemy nations with all the nation's total efforts."

WINS TRIBUNE AWARD ON WING TURNING DEVICE

Ex-Stunter's Idea Saves 5,750 Hours Monthly.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Robert L. Wills.

A former Kentuckian who was a stunt flyer in his youth and now helps build war planes for Uncle Sam is the winner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S War Workers' Award for November for outstanding effort in production. He is Robert L. Wills, an employe of the aircraft division of the Pullman - Standard Car Manufacturing company. His achievement is the development of a device that saved his plant approximately 5,750 man hours of hard work a month.

Lt. Col. Nelson S. Talbott of the army air force will present the award—symbolized by a diamond studded gold pin—in a radio program to be broadcast over Radio Station W-G-N from 8:45 to 9 o'clock tonight. Col. Talbott is assistant district supervisor for the army air forces in Chicago. He is an All-American football player who captained the Yale football team in 1914. He served in the last war as a major of artillery.

Second Award to Pullman.

This will be the second time a Pullman-Standard worker has received The Tribune award. The company is the only one to have a repeat honor. The other winner was Donald Cameron, of the ship division. Wills' is the 17th award.

Pullman-Standard makes wing sections and other parts for the big Douglas C-47 and C-54 planes used in military operations. When completed the sections are shipped to four assembly plants, including the vast Chicago plant of the Douglas Aircraft corporation, near Park Ridge, which builds the C-54.

Putting together the wing sections is a major job. Some have 80,000 rivets in them, weigh about a half ton, and measure 38 feet by 14 feet 8 inches. Turning one of the wings over during its construction is a difficult task because of its size and weight and because of the care required to avoid damage.

Much Lost Motion.

Previously, in turning over a wing, a foreman gave a signal and 35 workers left other work to give a hand at the job. Besides taking them away from their own tasks, turning a wing caused men to lose time by getting out of their own routines—it took time to get "into the swing" of their own jobs again when the wing was turned.

Wills noted the situation and didn't like it. A block and tackle arrangement had been tried but it was a failure. So he devised a mechanical device consisting of an ingenious arrangement of cables attached to three pulleys and an equalizing bar. One man can now lift the wing, with two or three men to steady it during the turning over process. What was once a back breaking job now is a simple task.

Hopes for Second Award.

Wills, who lives with his wife, Marie, at 15305 Paulina avenue, Harvey, is an unusual worker who has already submitted more than 20 successful ideas. He has just completed another which he hopes will make him twice a winner. For a hobby he builds miniature trains and cars, but priorities stopped that.

After leaving school in Morehead, Ky., Wills, who is now 43, did some stunt flying with Ruth Law's flying circus. One of his feats was to walk on the wing of a plane in flight at state fairs. Until the war he flew for pleasure from Chicago district airports. He has lived in the Chicago district 25 years and has been with Pullman-Standard eight years. His first job there was a welder in the building of the streamliner Green Diamond.

Wills' advice to workers is to stay on the job they are doing so as to stop a lot of the confusion in the war plants caused by workers changing jobs. He says if every one will give all his effort to whatever job he is working on the lives of a lot of soldiers can be saved. He has had offers to work elsewhere, but prefers to remain "with his fine fellow workers at the plant."

Plant Is Impressive.

It's too bad that all Chicagoans can't go thru Pullman-Standard's aircraft division plant for they would be proud of their fellow citizens—men and women—who are building wings, rudders, stabilizers, tail surfaces, and other parts going into planes. To r reporter who has visited many of America's most important war plants, the Chicago operation of the Pullman-Standard is one of the most impressive he has seen. Men and women in the plant give the impression of a first team playing in the big time.

Production figures may not be given, but it may be said that, since Pullman-Standard shipped its first wing on Armistice day, 1941, it has turned out 12 or 13 times as many sets of wings as were in existence when the plant was started.

Rescue Reward Is Bitten Wrist

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lassoes Dog

Patrolman Francis Flood of the Evanston police yesterday pondered the ingratitude of a German shepherd dog, owner unknown. Flood and Patrolman Laurence Borre answered the summons of C. L. Turner, 2600 Payne street, Evanston, who reported a dog in the lake. Turner, professor of zoölogy at Northwestern university, said he could see the animal from the window of his laboratory on the campus. The policemen ventured across several yards of ice toward the dog in the water. Flood then fashioned a lariat from a tow rope, lassoed the animal and pulled it to safety. But as Flood tried to put the dog in the squad car, it turned and bit him on the left wrist. Flood went to St. Francis hospital for first aid and the dog to the Evanston pound.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—The rescue of 18 survivors of the Cuban freighter Libertad thru the use of three navy patrol airships and a surface vessel was disclosed by the navy today.

The survivors of the Libertad, lost off the North Carolina coast Dec. 4, had been in the water for more than 30 hours before they were rescued. Twenty-five crewmen were never found. Cause of the sinking was undetermined, but the first report said two underwater explosions were heard in the area about the time of the ship's disappearance.

Airships Sent Out.

On the morning of Dec. 5 two airships, the K-82 and K-72 were dispatched on special patrol, each to search different areas southeast of Cape Hatteras.

The K-82, under command of Ensign Joseph Hudner, 20, son of Mrs. Lucille Hudner, Washington, D. C., sighted the first two survivors. They were clinging to two planks. Emergency rations were lowered and then a life raft was dropped.

One man was strong enough to swim to it and drag himself aboard. But he was not able to paddle it back to his companion who was too weak to leave his wreckage. A surface craft was signaled and the K-82 hovered overhead until the two men were taken aboard.

12 More Sighted.

Later in the afternoon the K-72, commanded by Lt. John Marck, Brooklyn, sighted two rafts with 12 more Libertad survivors. The surface vessel was summoned by radio and an hour later these men were on board.

During the afternoon the third navy airship, the K-76, under Lt. David D. Breault, Los Angeles, Cal., was dispatched to the scene. At 8 o'clock the next morning it sighted an overturned lifeboat with four Libertad crewmen clinging to it. The surface vessel, only two miles away, quickly had them aboard.

MAJOR SHOOTS DOWN 4 JAPS TO MAKE TOTAL 24

ADVANCE SOUTH PACIFIC AIR BASE, Dec. 23 [Delayed]—(AP).—Maj. Gregory Boyington bagged four Japanese Zeros over Rabaul today to bring his score of enemy planes shot down to 24, two under the record of Maj. Joe Foss.

Maj. Gregory Boyington.

The four Zeros were part of 26, and possibly 29, Japanese planes destroyed in a raid on the Japanese base in New Britain by the marine "blacksheep" squadron.

Sgt. Carl W. Prost of Greensburg, Pa., waist gunner of a bomber flown by 2d Lt. Raymond Zener of Milwaukee, Wis., shot down one of four Zeros which attacked his plane.

PREDICTS EARLY ALLIED VICTORY AFTER INVASION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—Vice President Henry Wallace tonight forecast destruction of Germany's war might within "a few months" after the cross-channel invasion of Europe.

Wallace, in a radio interview, praised the nation's war effort in 1943 but asserted that a greater civilian sacrifice would be needed next year.

The American people are ready to do what is necessary to preserve the peace henceforth, he said, adding:

"The American people have learned a lot . . . the hard way. This time, regardless of party, they will hold the statesmen of this country accountable for definite results in laying the foundations for a long lasting military and economic peace."

STAY ON JOBS, STEEL UNIONS ASKED BY F. D. R.

Work During Wage Fight Parleys, He Urges.

action in "protecting gains we have fought so hard and so long for." The union's only request, he said, is that the company agree that any increased wages or other provisions, which may be contained in a new agreement as a result of negotiations or government order, be retroacitve to the expiration of the 1942-43 contract.

Brooks Assails New Deal.

Sen. Wayland Brooks, in Chicago over the holidays, assailed the administration for the situation and placed the entire blame in its lap.

"It is but the result of the vacillating conduct of the administration's handling of the entire war man power and wage problems," he asserted. "Unless they assume a definite war program, the future confusion on the home front will be as detrimental in our war effort as the action of the enemy. The men who are facing death on battle fronts are entitled to an intelligent and forthright program to insure continuous production to back them up."

Turned Back at Gates.

John Henneberger, president of the CIO Steel Workers' local at the Youngstown plant in South Chicago, declared the men would not return to work without a contract. He said all his men stopped work at 6 p. m. Saturday.

Those who showed up on the midnight shift were turned back at the gates by union stewards.

An additional 268 companies face similar stoppages when contracts expire Jan. 3, spokesmen for the steel industry said. Among the plants are the United States Steel corporation's huge Carnegie Illinois unit in South Chicago, American Bridge company's Gary and South Chicago works, and Tubular Alloy Steel corporation at Gary. Fifty thousand men will be effected.

Work stoppages began in the Cleveland and Youngstown, O., areas and moved to Chicago. An estimated 35,000 workers were idle in the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company's Cleveland and Youngstown plants yesterday. Officials of Republic Steel corporation and the Timken Roller Bearing company said 20,000 men were out in the Canton, O., plants.

Four thousand employes of the Wheeling Steel corporation at Portsmouth, O., were reported out and 6,500 failed to report at the Crucible Steel Company of America at Midland, Pa.

RAIL PARLEY TODAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—Plans to resume conferences in the railroad wage dispute failed to materialize today, but spokesmen for management and the 15 nonoperating unions will resume their talks tomorrow.

President Roosevelt is expected back in the capital by tomorrow to take a hand in seeking a solution of the problem to avert a strike or government seizure on Thursday.

Two of the operating unions—engineers and trainmen—who, with the carriers, accepted the President's offer of arbitration, expect him to make a ruling in their case in the next day or two, regardless of the negotiations affecting the other unions.

The management and the unions probably would have little difficulty in agreeing if the government's approval were not necessary. In fact, the carriers and the nonoperating unions have a contract providing for an increase of 8 cents an hour, but Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson refuses to validate it.

Green Diamond Derailed at St. Louis; None Hurt

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 26 (AP).—One car of the Green Diamond, crack Illinois Central passenger train, split a switch at an east side tunnel exit today and smashed a small switch tower. Damage was estimated at $10,000. H. J. Bowman, chief clerk at the railroad's superintendent's office, said no one was injured.

WILEY DEMANDS SIMPLIFICATION OF TAX BLANKS

Payers Befuddled and Angry, He Says.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—Sen. Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] called today for simplification of government income tax forms. He asserted "poor, bewildered" taxpayers rapidly are becoming "frustrated wrecks" trying to figure out how much income tax they owe.

Sen. Wiley.

Sen. Wiley made his demands in a letter to Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the senate finance committee, which Thursday reported out the 1943 revenue bill. The bill increases federal taxes by 2 billion 275 million dollars, but does little to simplify the paper work of the taxpayer.

When the house ways and means committee went to work on the revenue bill last summer it adopted as a primary objective simplification of the paper work of the taxpayer. The treasury also directed its efforts toward this end.

Groups Can't Agree.

Neither the ways and means committee nor the treasury could agree on a method of simplification. The house voted to eliminate the victory tax and the earned income credit but set up some new tax rates that the treasury claimed made the taxpayer's job more complicated than ever.

Sen. Wiley asserted in his letter to Sen. George and the finance committee that the income tax report that Mr. and Mrs. America will fill out next March is so complicated that Paul Bunyan, that legendary figure of the north woods who was indomitable, probably would have been stymied by it.

Disturbed and Befuddled.

"I have but recently returned from Wisconsin where I found the completion of our present tax forms one of the greatest problems facing the people of that state," Sen. Wiley stated in his letter. "They were disturbed, befuddled, and in many cases angry. They were bewildered, as I must admit I was, at exactly what is required and what is wanted."

BRITISH PLAN BIG DRIVE TO REGAIN EXPORT MARKET

Expanded War Industries to Be Springboard.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Using a greatly expanded war industrial system as a spring board, British manufacturers are planning to invade the export market on a much larger scale after the war than before.

Oliver Lyttelton, minister of production, has pointed out that prior to lend-lease Britain liquidated a large part of her foreign investments to pay for war materials, and that much of the income once available from this source no longer exists.

British imports before the war, amounting to about 4 billion dollars a year, were three-fifths paid for by export goods and two-fifths by investment income, the sale of shipping, banking, and other services. Much of the two-fifths will be nonexistent after the war, which will make it necessary for Britain to produce more goods to sell abroad.

Must Exceed 1929 Exports.

In a speech to the Institution of Chemical Engineers as long ago as last April Lyttelton said Britain will have to restore its exports to a point well above the 1929 level in order to pay in this way for much greater percentage of imports than before the war.

Warning that Britain can consume an amount only equal to what it produces, he urged the study of foreign markets and the application of science to industry in an attempt to recapture the industrial leadership held by Britain in the 19th century.

In attempting to expand her export markets Britain faces the problem of coping with industrial developments in other countries which have been forced by the lack of shipping. Australia, for instance, has built up many secondary industries which can produce many things previously purchased from the mother country. This is true to a lesser degree in New Zealand and Canada.

Australia and New Zealand formerly supplied raw materials to Britain in exchange for which they took finished goods. Wool, for instance, was shipped from Australia to Britain, woven into cloth, and reshipped to Australia. The Australians at present are making their own cloth and parallel situations exist in other fields. Just how this is going to work itself out is one of the problems facing United Kingdom manufacturers.

Man Power Position Favorable.

British man power position after the war will be more favorable than before the war. There will be many more skilled workers in industrial trades and an abundance of machine tools.

It may be that Britain will be in a better position than any other country to shift over to peace time production as a result of the attempt to maintain flexibility in manufacturing processes. In the airplane industry and some others the British have adopted the American assembly line technique, but it has been the government policy not to tie war industries down too much to rigid mass production methods.

CHINESE RETAKE BASE WHERE JAP DRIVE STARTED

Capture Kungan, Push On to North.

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 26 (AP).—Kungan, one of the central China bases from which the Japanese launched last month's drive into the "rice bowl" district, fell to China's forces in a Christmas day battle, the Chinese high command announced today.

Close in from 3 Sides.

The success meant that the counter-attacking Chinese, having regained all the territory northwest of Lake Tung Ting lost since the Japanese drive got under way on Nov. 2, are continuing their drive northward into territory held since last summer by the invaders.

Kungan fell to the Japanese during last summer's drive along the upper Yangtze river. The city lies just west of the Sungtze river, more than half way between Lake Tung Ting and the Yangtze river.

Chinese Mopping Up.

The Chinese announced Friday that Chinese forces were advancing on the base from three directions, and today's bulletin disclosed that the advancing columns had converged and completed the city's occupation at 3:20 p. m. Christmas day. Other Chinese columns advancing along the east bank of the Sungtze had cleared all the territory lying between Kungan and the Yangtze, it was announced.

Mopping up operations are continuing against Japanese forces still occupying a section of the rice bowl territory southeast of Kungan and due north of Tung Ting lake.

ZIONISTS LASH BRITISH POLICY FOR PALESTINE

Ask U.S. to Help Open Gates for Jews.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Chicago Zionists observed the Maccabean victory festival of Chanukkah last night with an appeal for "the abrogation of the last vestige of the Munich era of appeasement" in England's 1939 white paper policy against Jewish immigration to Palestine.

The appeal was made by Dr. Israel Goldstein, of New York, president of the Zionist organization of America, before a dessert dinner meeting in the Morrison hotel. In addition to Dr. Goldstein's plea for American espousal of the cause which would alleviate Jewish postwar conditions, the assemblage adopted a resolution offered by Judge Harry M. Fisher of Superior court asking full weight of United States prestige for abandonment of "the illegal white paper."

Hits Artificial Barriers.

"Jewish immigration to Palestine must be regulated by Jewish need and not by any artificial restrictions," Dr. Goldstein said. "It is estimated that outside of Russia, 3 million will survive on the continent of Europe, if the war ends soon. At least 1 million will want and will be able to go to Palestine at the first opportunity.

"Now that the authority of Great Britain is unchallenged in the near and middle east, nothing and no one can stop England from opening the gates of Palestine wide to Jews except its own unwillingness. Let us not be lulled, however, by the recent statement of the British colonial minister that the white paper deadline, April 1, will be lifted until the unused balance of 31,000 certificates will have been used."

Points to Move in Iraq.

Dr. Goldstein cited England's relinquishment of its mandate over Iraq in favor of Iraqian self-government, explaining that it can yield its mandate over Palestine only in favor of a Jewish commonwealth. He said the policy behind the Balfour declaration setting up a Jewish homeland involved eventual establishment of such a commonwealth.

H. L. Meites paid tribute to Bernard Horwich, Chicago business man, as the founder of the first Zionist federation in America. A bust of Mr. Horwich was presented to him. In accepting the gift Mr. Horwich recalled early Chicago Zionist leaders, including Judge Fisher, Nathan D. Kaplan, president of the Zionist Organization of Chicago, and S. B. Komaiko.

MAYWOOD CLAN ASSAILS GAG ON STORY OF HERO

Demands that the war department burocrats publish the story of Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess, flying hero of the battle of Bataan, who was killed in a plane crash at Burbank, Cal., on Wednesday and other information about the war in the Pacific were voiced again yesterday by 100 members of the Bataan clan of Maywood. They met in the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall in Maywood.

A. C. McArthur, president, and other speakers rebuked Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and his aids for suppressing information. McArthur said he believed the government had adopted a policy of silence with respect to the war in the Pacific because it was responsible for the debacle of the Philippines thru failure to provide the defenders with adequate arms.

FOUR APPOINTED FOR MAN POWER SURVEY BY NAVY

Members of the navy man power survey committee for the 9th naval district were named yesterday. They are Capt. F. M. McWhirter, senior member; Kenneth Burgess, a Chicago lawyer; J. A. Connor, regional director of the civil service commission, and Capt. M. E. Browder. Local groups, subordinate to the committee, will be appointed at key points thruout the naval district.

GOVERNOR URGES ECONOMY FOR VETERANS' SAKE

Charts Program to Aid Business Freedom.

Gov. Dwight H. Green said yesterday in his monthly radio report that government—local, state, and federal—must heed the demand of "an aroused American public that strict economy be practiced in every governmental function, and that economic barriers and restrictions be removed as soon as the war ends."

"The issue of the day most vital to the success or failure of our business and economic system in the post war world is the retention of the freedoms of opportunity and enterprise here in the United States," the governor asserted.

Universal Demand for Economy.

"Those freedoms almost have been destroyed thru excessive taxation, which prevents private investment and establishment of new businesses, and thru irresponsible regulation, which ruins many economic enterprises and greatly increases the risk of others. County, municipal, state, and federal government must heed the demand of an aroused American public, a demand that is increasing in volume and intensity every day, that strict economy be practiced in every governmental function, and that the economic barriers and restrictions be removed as soon as the war ends."

Outlining the work already done in Illinois for reconversion of agriculture, labor, and industry from war to peace production, Gov. Green said special emphasis had been placed on problems of the small business man.

"Some experts are saying that we must find 50 million jobs for veterans and civilians at the end of this war if America is to be prosperous and secure in the post-war era," he said. "Those jobs can only be sound, secure, and wholly self-supporting of they are provided by private enterprise.

Veterans Also Seek Freedom.

"The heroes of this war want no public charity, no leaf raking jobs. They are not undergoing the toil and suffering of battle in order to win a place on the relief rolls. They are insisting on total annihilation of the common enemy of America and of all mankind, and it is our duty here at home to insist that the freedom and opportunity which they are winning for us shall be fully available to them.

"Thru the liberty loving spirit of its people, thru all the agencies of its state government, and thru its congressional delegation, Illinois stands ready to coöperate wholly in any program, federal, state, or interstate, which will win back and guarantee that cherished freedom of opportunity and enterprise to every man, woman and child in the United States."

ROBBED IN PARKING LOT.

Thomas Clark, 123 North Clark street, reported to police yesterday that two Negroes armed with knives robbed him of $60 in a parking lot at 123 West Monroe street.

SUFFOCATES IN APARTMENT FIRE.

Henry Martin, 31 years old, 4225 Vincennes avenue, Negro, was suffocated yesterday by smoke from a fire that started in his basement apartment and spread to the first and second floors of the two story brick building. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

RABBI STRICKEN WHILE MARRYING HIS DAUGHTER

Rabbi David Kaminker of the Congregation Knesses Israel Nasachsforad, 1308 Independence boulevard, suffered a fatal heart attack yesterday in the middle of a ceremony at the Midland hotel, 172 West Adams street, in which he was marrying his daughter, Bertha, 21, to Marshall Sklare, 22, of 4932 North Ridgeway avenue.

The rabbi and the betrothed couple were standing beneath a white canopy in the flower decked Colonial room of the hotel. He had progressed in the ceremony to the point where he bestowed blessings upon the pair.

Falters and Collapses.

Suddenly he faltered, and a moment later collapsed to the floor before the gaze of his daughter and her bridegroom, and the 150 guests present.

A physician and a fire department inhalator squad were summoned, but resuscitation measures failed.

The wedding, in accordance with the tenets of the Jewish religion, was completed despite of the tragedy. The bride, her face streaked with tears, and the visibly shaken bridegroom exchanged final vows before Rabbi Lazar Berman, sexton of her father's congregation, and Cantor Moses Silverman, of Anshe Emet synagogue, in another room of the hotel.

File Out Silently.

The guests, who had attended the final phases of the ceremony, followed the newly wed couple from the room, a silent procession that filed past the gayly decorated room with tables laden with food.

Rabbi Kaminker had headed the congregation since he came here 15 years ago from his native Russia. He was known as one of the leading exponents of orthodox Jewry in Chicago, and was prominently identified with the Zionist movement.

Chicago U. Students.

He was the father of four other children, Bessie, Sarah, Samuel, and Mote. The Kaminker residence is at 1504 South Hamlin street.

Both the bride and bridegroom were students at the University of Chicago. Sklare was a graduate student in economics.

Two Robbers Tie and Gag Woman in Home; Get $40

Two hoodlums yesterday invaded the home of Peter La Dolce, owner of a candy store, at 1144 Sedgwick street, tied his wife, Mary, in a chair, gagged her, then stole $40 and some clothing. La Dolce was out at the time. Their daughter, Rosemary, 8 years old, slept thruout the robbery, and was not molested. The family pet, a puppy, tried to frighten the bandits, but was kicked into the kitchen. After the bandits left, Mrs. La Dolce called to Rosemary, who untied her.

WITH EACH FLOWER A MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF SERVICE!

When you nonchalantly drop in at the florist's and order this or that, sent to So and So at such and such a time, just what do you expect for your money? Flowers, of course. But, whether you realize it or not, you are also putting in your order for one of the most complete and intricate services this country has developed. And it's a wartime miracle that, in spite of shortages here and difficulties there, you can still place that order with every confidence of getting it!

Not So In Days Long Ago

Great grandmother knew no such service. When great grandmother wanted flowers for a winter wedding, she started out weeks ahead of time by hitching up the horses, making the rounds and placing orders at every greenhouse within trotting distance. One greenhouse wasn't enough. The flower grower of her day went in for variety, a little of this, less of that. To get any quantity of a given kind, she must enlist the aid of every grower within reach. Then, when the day came, all she had to do was hitch up again, make the rounds again, collect her wedding decorations—and pray the "bays" would beat time and temperature home so her hard gotten posies would still be fit to use when she used them!

Service at Your Florist

It hasn't really been so long, you see, since the purchase of flowers was always a direct transaction with the man who grew them. The service end came into being only with the retail florist. Today he "makes the rounds" at the flower wholesaler. Through your florist, you have access not only to local greenhouses but to sources of supply all over the country—to varieties otherwise completely out of reach, to almost any given quantity expertly matched or blended, to roses all the year round. Today, also, he is responsible for transportation. Through him you have at your command scientific packaging, timing, refrigeration, all the careful details necessary to bring one of the most perishable of commodities to your door as fresh as when they were cut in some far distant greenhouse!

Service Behind Every Flower

All this lies behind every single flower the florist sells. It is, in fact, what makes it possible for you to have flowers at all. Some services can be dispensed with in wartime. Any service is difficult to maintain. But the florist, knowing his service and his flowers to be inseparable, seeing daily in his own shop evidence of the tremendous morale value he sells, is putting in overtime. He is devising ingenious new methods. He is making possible the seemingly impossible—and keeping his service going. Not quite as usual, maybe. But, with your help and understanding, usual enough so that all of us still, when we need a lift, can stop in or telephone—and order flowers!

NOTE: The articles about flowers and kindred subjects that appear in this paper from time to time are the cooperative endeavor of retail florists, flower growers and wholesalers in the Chicago area.

TRIO RETURNING FROM YULE FETE KILLED BY TRAIN

John Mordue [top] and Howard Mathis.

The victims were:

Was Home on Furlough.

Howard Mathis, 21, of 9151 South Hoyne avenue, a student at the University of Illinois, under induction orders to report for active duty at Fort Benning, Ga. He was the son of Eugene Mathis, vice president and treasurer of the New York Blower company, 3155 Shields avenue.

John Mordue, 22, of 10626 South Hoyne avenue, home on furlough from duty in the Pacific area with the navy Seabees.

Miss Jaeger, Mathis, and Mordue, were returning from a Christmas night party in honor of Mathis' induction, when they were killed. Their car was struck by an army ordnance train, and hurled 15 feet to the side of the tracks. Mathis was driving. The crossing has no gates, but is protected by flicker lights, and the lights were working, said Sgt. Fred May of the county highway police at Willow Springs. An inquest will be held at 10 a. m. today.

One Killed, 3 Injured.

Mrs. Caroline Selby, 52 years old, 600 West 111th street, was killed, and her husband, William, 53, and their daughter, Shirley, 21, a student nurse, were critically injured last night when their automobile collided headon with a car driven by Mrs. Elaine Gross, 27, of 8052 South Throop street, in Harlem avenue, near 58th street. Mrs. Gross, also critically hurt, and others were removed to MacNeal Memorial hospital, Berwyn.

Mrs. Alma Larson, 65 years old, 7607 Stewart avenue, a widow, died in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries she suffered Tuesday when she slipped and fell in the path of an automobile at 67th street and Harvard avenue. William Nemitis, 64, of 908 West 67th street, was the driver.

Ronald Hapke, 11 years old, 5811 South Claremont avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by an automobile at 63d street and Damen avenue as he ran to catch a street car. The automobile was driven by Antone S. Mikula, 33, 2701 24th street, an attorney.

Banana Dealer Killed.

Joseph Malchiodi, 42, of 5805 South Talman avenue, was killed when his automobile skidded on wet street car tracks, and struck a pole in front of 5031 South Western avenue. He was a wholesale dealer in bananas.

Andrew Smego, 33, of 2011 Allport street, was fatally injured in a collision between his car and another automobile at Halsted street and Cermak road. James Hamilton, 28, Negro, 713 East 50th street, driver of the other automobile, and three passengers were slightly hurt. Smego owned a bicycle shop at 1340 West 18th street.

STATE TEACHERS TO HEAR TALK BY EX-ENVOY GREW

Joseph C. Grew, former ambassador to Japan, will describe the background of the Pacific war in an address before the Illinois Education association in the Morrison hotel Wednesday night.

He will speak at the annual banquet in connection with the association's 90th annual meeting, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, to be attended by more than 500 delegates of the 48,000 Illinois school teachers.

Charles McIntosh of Monticello, who retired last June after serving for 30 years as treasurer of the association, will be honored at the same banquet. McIntosh is county superintendent of Piatt county schools. He has held that post since 1898 and in point of service is the oldest county superintendent in the state.

News Dealer Found Dead; Wife Away on Vacation

Harry Bassin, 58 years old, operator of a newsstand at 67th street and Harper avenue, was found dead yesterday at his stand. Police and neighbors of the news dealer last night were seeking to reach his wife in Miami Beach, Fla., where she is reported on vacation.

AN EARLY RISER HAS COCK-EYED SENSE OF TIMING

People in the vicinity of 45½ East Walton street have wondered for a long time what all the crowing was about.

It was, and is, about a rabbit named Hitler, a turtle named Matilda, four bulldogs named Tommy, Question, Dee Dee Boy, and Sir John Falstaff, and a woman named Mrs. Edward A. Doyle.

A huge Plymouth Rock rooster named Big Boy does the crowing. He does it because he is happy, and likes Hitler, Matilda, Tommy, Question, Dee Dee Boy, Sir John Falstaff, and Mrs. Edward A. Doyle.

Every day at 4 a. m., neighbors have noticed, Big Boy utters one little crow, and then nothing is heard from him until noon. At noon he does all the crowing that roosters are supposed to do at dawn.

Owner Has Explanation.

Mrs. Doyle, who owns all the animals and the building at 45½ East Walton streets, said last night that she doesn't know why Big Boy crows just once at 4 a. m., but explained that he does it a lot at noon because [a] he is happy and [b] that's when she lets him out to play.

He plays in the back yard. Back yards are nearly non-existent in the neighborhood, which consists of many things, including skyscraper hotels, luxurious apartments and apartments not so luxurious, famous night clubs and night clubs not so famous, busy streets and quiet streets. All who heard it wondered about the crowing, because it has been a long time since the area was populated by poultry.

Mrs. Doyle explained that she doesn't keep poultry. She only keeps pets. They were left in her care by her late husband, an attorney who died nearly two years ago. A caretaker named John helps her with them. She said he is fond of all animals, but has an especial weakness for race horses.

All her pets are perfect ladies and gentlemen, said Mrs. Doyle. She taught the rooster and the rabbit manners by threatening them with rolled newspapers.

As for the neighbors and the neighborhood, says Mrs. Doyle, who claims to be a niece of the Mexican general, Porifiro Diaz, "if they don't like it, they know what they can do."

Apparently they do like it, because so far none has complained to East Chicago avenue police, and most of them who have heard Big Boy crowing [and most of them have] say:

"It's sort of melodious."

2 PORTERS DIE IN RESTAURANT; GAS IS BLAMED

Two porters at Denny's restaurant, 4239 Halsted street, were found dead, apparently of gas asphyxiaton, when Harry Babanicols, 6125 South Fairfield avenue, owner, opened the cafe last night. It had been closed since Friday night.

One of the porters, Jeff Quarles, 60 years old, 6028 South Park way, was a Negro. The other was H. J. Bellheimer, 65, 4617 Wallace street. Quarles, the night watchman, was seated in a chair in the kitchen. Bellheimer was slumped over a table in the restaurant.

Stock yards police said the deaths apparently were caused by fumes escaping from the gas burner that supplied heat to the restaurant.

A FRENCH GOVERNOR COMPLAINS.

Christian l'Aigret, the French provincial governor of New Caledonia, had some disparaging things to say about American soldiers before he took off from that island base for another assignment. He accused Negro troops of attacking white women in New Caledonia and complained of the conduct of white American troops when drunk. The charges have been denied by correspondents familiar with the facts.

The true source of M. L'Aigret's anguish was buried farther down in his statement. He criticized the Americans for establishing nonprofit canteens in the buildings to which they have been assigned in Noumea, the island's capital.

The person least entitled to criticize American soldiers for anything is a European colonial governor in the South Pacific. The French, like the Dutch and the British, proved early in the war that their colonial britches were much too big for them, and their indifferently ruled, highly exploited colonies were left without adequate protection.

Had it not been for America's men and materials Gov. L'Aigret would be working for the Japanese army today. It would be interesting to hear his criticism of Jap troops quartered on his island under those circumstances, but it is obvious that he would not make those criticisms aloud.

Before the American nonprofit canteens were set up the French population of Noumea was busily engaged, apparently under Gov. L'Aigret's blessing, in gouging every penny it could out of the American soldiers on New Caledonia. Nickel drinks sold for 40 cents and tiny ice cream cones were a quarter. Several French shopkeepers amassed large fortunes, and one is reputed to have become a millionaire.

The canteens stopped that racket, and the French are mad. They, like the citizens of other European nations, have been led by the munificence of lend-lease to expect all Americans to be perpetual suckers.

When the war ends America will be in a position to terminate the worries of Gov. L'Aigret by retaining possession of New Caledonia and other islands that this nation has had to hold or to win back from Japan.

The European imperialists were not able to protect these possessions, and they certainly will not be able to protect them after the war. They will rely on America to do that job for them again. The Pacific will have to be an American ocean if it is to remain an occidental ocean. It would be a good time now to point that out to the French, the Dutch, and the other Europeans whose squatters' rights have expired.

THE COMMUNISTS WANT ROOSEVELT.

Earl Browder, the Communist convict who was released by President Roosevelt from a federal prison where he had been serving a sentence for passport fraud, said in a speech recently that the voters must "rally around the President" and elect him to a fourth term.

Mr. Roosevelt delivered Browder from prison, and the Communist would be less than human if he did not want to repay the debt. But the thing is not quite that simple. Mr. Roosevelt, apparently, is going to have to keep right on delivering for Browder if he wants to keep Browder's support. That was indicated in the Communist's remarks about the Teheran conference.

Browder said that great work was accomplished when Mr. Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill met. The United States and Great Britain, he said, decided at Teheran to accept "the soviet union's socialistic government as something permanent."

The full story of Teheran and its agreements has not been told, but whatever pledges Mr. Roosevelt may have made in Iran, he could not bind this country to accept the present government of soviet Russia as permanent. The United States can have only one basic attitude toward the government of Russia, or of any other foreign country. It is that the government is just as permanent as the citizens of the nation in question want to make it.

If the Russian peasants who are fighting the Nazis so valiantly want to lay down their tommy guns when the war is over and surrender themselves to the secret police of Mr. Stalin's commissariat, they have the right to do so. But neither the United States nor any other free nation is going to force communism down their throats.

Earl Browder is a daily symbol of the violation of pledges made by the soviet union to this country that it would not interfere in our politics. Despite the soviet assertion of 1923 and the more recent Moscow statement that the Communist International has been disbanded, the soviets continue to meddle in our affairs.

Certainly no one can be surprised that Browder, speaking for the Communist party, has indorsed Mr. Roosevelt's fourth term ambitions. It has been pointed out many times that the Roosevelt-New Deal party has been deserted by every group in America except the Communists, the Anglophiles, and Wall street.

PUNISHED BY OPA.

W. M. McFarland, chief OPA hearing commissioner for the middle west, conducted an auto-da-fe recently, the centerpiece being a Texas heretic named Mark Miller. Mr. Miller not only harbored dangerous thoughts, but further flouted authority by putting them down on paper, all to the detriment of the peace and, more particularly, the dignity of the OPA.

What he did was to start out from Brownsville, Tex., last summer and make his way to the Canadian border in Minnesota, driving his automobile and buying his gasoline without the aid of ration coupons. He finished the trip with coupons for an extra 190 gallons and sold the story of the trip to a national magazine.

Obviously this sort of thing cannot be allowed. If people go around proving that Mr. McFarland and his OPA associates are falling down on the job they might have to get out and go to work, perhaps in a war plant. That rumbling you hear isn't the shaking foundations of the Republic. It's merely the knees of a thousand burocrats, clattering in unison at such a horrid prospect.

Mr. McFarland, revoking Mr. Miller's ration book for a six month period, asserted that the natural result of Miller's publicity will be to make more people willing to violate the law. One wonders where Mr. McFarland was last summer, when a group of OPA officials cashed their C coupons and went larruping from Chicago to Madison for the purpose of having their pictures taken with the governor of Wisconsin while he signed a bill that they favored.

The fact is that the only thing that is holding the rationing program together is the disinclination of the vast majority of citizens to violate regulations, even tho they are convinced by now that the regulations are promulgated by the most inept crowd of lardheads who were ever clothed with public authority. Every one knows that it is possible to violate rationing rules, and it is public conscience, not futile OPA enforcement, that prevents the practice becoming more widespread than it is.

A SOUND VERDICT.

A federal jury in New York did Chicago a considerable service by convicting six of Al Capone's heirs and assigns of extortion.

Chicago was headquarters in the conspiracy which extorted hundreds of thousands of dollars from motion picture producers and exhibitors on the threat of crippling their business with strikes, but the operations of the conspiracy were nation-wide. After they murdered Tommy Malloy, who taught the motion picture industry to fear terrorist methods, the gangsters succeeded in installing George E. Browne, an amiable rum pot, and Willie Bioff, the former business agent for a Halsted street brothel, in control of the International Union of Theatrical and Stage Employes. This union included at the time the motion picture operators. By a series of shady deals with other AFL unions, the gangsters won jurisdiction over the motion picture production technicians of Hollywood. Browne and Bioff conducted the actual shakedowns, for which they were convicted and sentenced to prison two years ago, and were among the witnesses who, in the recent New York trial, showed that the loot was split with the gangsters who put them in power.

A number of wealthy motion picture company executives took the witness stand in the New York trial. Their story, when they told it in court, was that they submitted to extortion because they feared for their lives and because they were afraid that the strikes which the defendants were capable of staging would wreck their businesses. So they paid off. The defense contention was that there was no extortion, but that the motion picture magnates bribed the racketeers to sell out the members of their unions in wage contracts.

It is a fact that some of the contracts made during the period of extortion and bribery paid far less attention to the welfare of the union members than to the power and perquisites of the gangsters who controled the union, but whether the Hollywood gentlemen indulged in bribery or merely submitted, as the New York jury concluded they had, to extortion, their moral standing is not enhanced. It must be admitted that the pressure to which they were subjected was severe. The threats against their lives may be discounted, as they would have been by stouter men. The threats to their business were serious. The motion picture theater is peculiarly vulnerable to sabotage. The audience sits in the dark, the planting of stink bombs is relatively easy, and the risk of panic in the event that more vicious tactics may be employed is not wholly to be disregarded.

But the movie magnates were by no means defenseless. They are wealthy and their corporations are wealthy. Their case was not parallel to that of little back street shopkeepers who, when met with gangster threats, find themselves defenseless and without friends to protect their lives and their business. The motion picture business is big business. Its leaders, when they submitted to the gangsters, forfeited their right to public respect. Men of firmer character would have fought back, regardless of the cost. These men could have resisted, but they surrendered ignobly.

HOW FIRM A FOUNDATION.

The war production board has announced that the manufacturers of girdles for the ladies may have all the synthetic rubber they need to make two-way stretch material.

The Associated Press in reporting this boon observes that "there's one hitch." Only one? If so, synthetic rubber must be a great improvement over the natural product. If the day has come when a girdle needs but one hitching and from that moment stays hitched the world has surely progressed. Mankind may not have solved the problem of perpetual motion, but perpetual immobility is no mean achievement, whether in coral, white, or flesh pink.

Ah there, Goering! What reichsmarshal was it who said which city would never have a single bomb dropped on it?—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

With the domestic help situation what it is, how one would go about spoiling the broth it would be hard to say.—Detroit News.

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

THE DAYS AFTER.

The spell lingers, even for adults returning to business as usual; the Christmas tree continues its message thru the nights; the days are enriched. There is no blunt reaction or sense of anticlimax in the Yuletide, which puts on cap-and-bells on New Year's eve and then looks forward to the entrance of the Magi on Twelfth Night.

* * *

Church calendars mark Dec. 27 as the festival of St. John the Evangelist, called the Beloved Disciple, and Dec. 28 as the festival of the Holy Innocents, in old English custom called Childermas. The latter venerates the children murdered by order of King Herod in Bethlehem and elsewhere when he became aware of the mission of the Three Wise Men, and so is closely associated with the Christmas tradition. In general, however, these days receive special observance only by people of strict religious life.

* * *

Dec. 31 is almanacked as Inventory day, but we have never heard an American call it that, and suspect that a population which is looking forward to the most riotous night of the year is in no mood to indulge in scrupulous bookkeeping. Jan. 1 is often a terrible day for those who have welcomed it with overindulgence in ardent spirits and fortified wines, but the resolutions taken in their mood of penitence and remorse may set their feet on the road to wisdom in such matters. For the editor of this column, the night of Dec. 31 is a booby trap to be skimmed over with the utmost caution. As a New Year's eve observance he prefers the Northwestern-Notre Dame basketball game to a 24-toast dinner in the Russian fashion.

* * *

Twelfth Night, for which Shakespeare wrote a play, falls on Jan. 5, bringing in Twelfth Day, formerly called Old Christmas, with the festival of the Epiphany. On this day, if you are an observer of inherited customs, the Christmas tree should be taken down, in homes and churches. But the present generation is forgetful in such matters; some trees go into the alley too soon and some too late.

* * *

The orthodox method of Christmas tree disposal is burning by its owner, if fire prevention commonsense is observed. In Chicago, however, small boys drag them away to their secret lairs.

NORTH SIDE NOCTURNE.

Hail, friendly night, haven of sweet repose,
Joy of the scrivening wight, lauded in verse and prose,
Jeweled with windowlight beacons of gold and rose,

Bounced from the nearby bar,
The bums' quartet on the corner,
The flat-wheeled Clark street car,
The cushion-bound sojourner
(Out of wedlock born),
Whose mating call
Is a blasting bawl
On his musical motor horn.

Hail, friendly night, Macbeth of burgher's doze,
Faker and fraudulent fright, with the pharisaical pose,
Jezebel's own delight, Satan in Santa's clothes,

History of the Gold Coast—LIV.

The eastward extension of the older part of the Lake Shore drive, connecting it with that fronting on Streeterville, was put thru by the Lincoln Park commission in due time. The lake was now lined with a wide stone beach, a sidewalk, and a stretch of parkway from Fullerton avenue to Ohio street. Along the walk were numerous benches on which the gammers and gaffers sunned themselves, smiled, smirked, and at times tittered while indulging in the mild flirtations of the long, long ago of the old North Town.

The lake was up to its old tricks again. Being at a low level, it quickly threw up a short, narrow stretch of clean, yellow sand along the eastward extension of the drive and the Oak Street beach came into existence. Swimming was still forbidden along the drive, but the cool blue and green water and the tossing white surf beckoned invitingly on hot summer days and violations of the ordinance were common.

A demand arose that the ban be lifted, and lifted it was. A decorous lot, garbed in bathrobes and bathing suits with sleeves and skirts, took advantage of the new privilege. Bathing machines alone were lacking to call to mind Brighton-on-Sea and Deauville.

Prohibition raised its sourful puss in 1915 and brought about the enforcement of the Sunday closing ordinance, much to the indignation of the bibulously inclined. Streeter, still haunting the shore at Chestnut street and maintaining the fiction of the independence of the "Deestrict," sprang into the breach to relieve the pangs of their suffering by laying in a large stock of wet groceries. He was successful for a few weeks, but one fine Sabbath day the police descended upon him, confiscated 8,000 bottles of beer, and carted him and "Ma" off to the cooler, both protesting loudly against this violation of their rights.

NAUGHTY TYPES OF YEAST.

PLANT parasites are everywhere. Food cannot be left standing in a warm spot unless we wish it to spoil. In many instances, the ensuing putrefaction will be brought about by yeasts or molds.

Every housewife knows why yeast is used in breadmaking. The tiny, microscopic forms will reproduce rapidly at ordinary room temperatures. They feed upon starch granules and have the power to convert carbohydrates [starches and sugars] into alcohol and carbon dioxide. This latter gas forces the dough to rise, thus rendering it porous. During the baking process, the alcohol is driven off and the fluffy but substantial loaf remains.

This variety of yeast is useful. But there are others which may not be. In fact, one kind may be responsible for digestive disorders, such as upsets within the colon. In sprue, we have copious gassy, fatty stools which usually are loaded with Monilia [a species of yeast].

The epidermis, especially of the hands and feet, can harbor these organisms. Many a patient will complain that she entertains a bright red, moist patch between the fingers, where the digits join the hands. Far more common in women, it seems to be a malady incident to housekeeping. The lesions may be observed between the toes and are sometimes mistaken for ringworm. Other favorite sites are folds of skin, particularly across the lower abdomen, or wherever chafing occurs. Slight scrapings of these sections, when examined under the microscope, may show the characteristic culprit.

Another condition, perleche, altho recognized for a generation or more, was unexplained until Finnerud, in 1929, proved that a fungus was the cause. This disturbance has been known to spread widely among school children, attacking the lips and corners of the mouth. Painful cracks may be exhibited.

Now and then lesions about the finger nails will come from the same source. The tissues may appear swollen and inflamed and even the hornlike portions may present transverse ridges, brownish in shade.

One reason why we teach scrupulous cleanliness of the hands is because they are so likely to pick up microbes of various types. The habit of using soap and water frequently may well be cultivated early. Many cases of sores within the mouth have been traced to infected fingers.

What can be done once these parasites have gained a foothold? Probably the most popular remedy is a very dilute solution of gentian violet. Soaking the parts in a solution of potassium permanganate [1 to 2,000] is likewise effective. Marked success has followed fractional doses of X-ray. Occasionally it has been found necessary to resort to injections of Monilia extracts which, in a sense, are similar to vaccines.

Nutrition may well be checked should these infections strike. Few of these pests will grow upon normal skin. It requires a break in the cuticle or a drop in resistance before they will be able to flourish. With undernourished children, we should be on our guard against these blemishes. This emphasizes anew the importance of maintaining adequate and balanced diets.

SLEEPERS.

C. L. M. writes: Why are some individuals light sleepers and others hard to arouse?

REPLY.

The state of the nervous system governs slumber. As a rule, slugabeds are phlegmatic, slow moving people. Those who are sensitive to every sound possess hairtrigger reactions. They are more inclined to be tense and vivacious.

PAIN IN SIDE.

A. C. writes: I have a steady soreness under the lower rib on left side. Please name a few things that could cause this.

REPLY.

Pleurisy, intercostal neuralgia, enlargement of the spleen, or irritation within the left colon.

JUST HEAT RAYS.

B. L. writes: Is there any benefit in the sun which shines thru window panes?

REPLY.

None except heat. The ultraviolet is filtered out completely. Quartz glass, however, will allow the chemical rays to penetrate.

STOMACH INFLAMMATION.

E. P. G. writes: What is gastritis? Can it be cured?

REPLY.

Irritation within the stomach. The condition can be relieved completely with proper attention to diet and eating habits. Your physician will know what to do.

DRINK SLOWLY.

B. E. G. writes: Is it all right for a person with a nervous stomach to drink water with meals?

REPLY.

No objection. Water drinking at mealtime promotes the flow of gastric juice. It should be sipped at intervals rather than gulped.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Sir!

A Chicago aspirant for the theater wrote in not long ago asking advice on how he could get started. Wrote the gentleman:

"I have long been a great admirer of the theatrical world and would like more than anything else in this world to some day be an actor.

"I was born on Dec. 3, '43. I am five feet 11, weigh 140 pounds, have dark brown hair, a light complexion, and blue eyes."

Dear sir: The side show is the place for you, and you'd better hurry if you want that. By 1944 you'll be too large for the stage.

Labor Note.

Ralph Kettering, manager of the Civic theater, tried to reach the theater by telephone Christmas eve to check up on the sale of tickets for the play, "Three Is a Family." He tried and tried, and there was no answer. Later he reproved the new office girl, Sadie, for not answering. "I quit answering it," she said. "It was such a nuisance. They only wanted to buy tickets."

Christmas in Retrospect.

Probably the most extraordinary Christmas card of the season is a formal announcement, printed on a plain card, sent out by a man and his wife and stating that they decided not to send any Christmas cards this year, but that if they had sent some, they probably would have said "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year." This makes a fitting complement to one sent by a Chicago lady who apologized, in original verse, for not sending cards last year. Said she was feeling gloomy.

A Day or Two After.

We're back in our old groove again;
The Loop's once more a cattle pen;
And sour-pussed burghers fill our ken:
Where now's that late Good Will to men?

HENRY THRALE.

Notes from Never-Never Land.

From a dispassionate observer of events on the Hollywood coast line comes news that after a year of chit-chat the movie colony has at last discovered war gardens and is going at the soil with an agrarian instinct both whimsical and glorious. All the playgrounds, solariums, and back yard flower beds have been plowed under, and the tired business man and his movie star neighbor cultivate the ground day and night.

As a person of pronounced misanthropic tendencies, our correspondent takes a particular interest in the feuding which has developed from this. He says it is every bit as good as in the Blue Ridge mountains. He cites the case of a citizen about the size of a real estate agent whom he saw pulverizing his dirt as tho it were gold dust. Suddenly he came upon a rock the size of a door knob. He glanced furtively about, then quickly tossed the rock into the farm of his neighbor, an old friend. It landed on one of the neighbor's tomato plants. The neighbor went after the rock-thrower with a hoe. The rock-thrower countered by setting the nozzle of his garden hose at a sharp stream and flailing it like a baseball bat. All of this took place in the subdivided [for purposes of harmony, unity, the four freedoms, and war gardens] field behind the Episcopal church in lots decorated with a border of baby's breath.

Subway Tonsils.

The man standing on the subway car was reading his newspaper. First only his lips moved. Then he read aloud to himself. As the subway became noisier and noisier, his voice became louder and louder.

Simple Enough.

Notice in the Grenada [Miss.] Daily Star:

"Found: One cowbell. Owner may have same by explaining the depredations of his cow. Phone 240."

War Is Tough.

Two dejected soldiers manned the WAC recruiting booth at Sears-Roebuck's loop store. Over their heads, wreathed in stars and stripes, was the legend: "Join the WAC. Release a man for active duty."

RACE AS A QUALIFICATION FOR OFFICE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—In answer to the editorial "Racial Politics" of Dec. 22, I was very much depressed that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE should take this line. The Americans of Polish descent in the United States are over 5 million strong and in Cook county over 600,000, and we haven't one federal judge in the United States.

We are as proud Americans as the English, Irish and others, and naturally as Americans would like to have one of our ancestry holding a federal judgeship and not have the suspicion of being discriminated against.

We are proud to say that during this war over half a million of our boys are serving in the United States forces and many of them have been decorated. Then why should we not be entitled to hold political offices that are naturally due us? We don't ask for any more than part of our share.

The Americans of Polish descent believe in practical democracy and would like to see that public offices are filled with Americans of every descent according to their population; that every citizen in the United States would have no cause to fear that his group is discriminated against; that only fairness and equal treatment, even in politics, builds patriotism.

S. E. BASINSKI.

THE ROPE OFF THE BUCKET.

Charlestown, Mass., Dec. 13.—The New Deal is all thru. Never in the world's history has there been such an assemblage of crackpots under one tent. Barnum died too young. Here was a group of men who, playing with the unfortunate poverty of millions, planned to stay in office forever. Slyly, one by one, they stole away the rights of the citizenry; rights that George Washington risked his life for.

They've had a lot of fun—experimenting. More fun than any one since Nero strummed the zither on the poop deck, long ago. The old abounding abundance has been plowed under. Four years more and we'd all be smothered in a chaotic void of arrogance, chicanery, speciousness, and bankruptcy.

The New Deal has sold its saddle. But they'd give you two silvery cents for a dime anytime. They'd take the rope off the old oaken bucket.

BROTHERHOOD WAGES.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—In July, at the middle of the month, there were 8,224 passenger conductors and wages for this classification were $2,824,902 in that month, an average of $343.50 per employe. This is earning money at the annual rate of $4,122. By a similar calculation, passenger engineers averaged $378.55 in July, an annual rate of $4,543. These figures do not include the 4 cents an hour increase these employes are now getting, under the award by an emergency board against which a strike has now been ordered.

RAILROAD EMPLOYE.

HOW ABOUT A PRESCRIPTION, DOC?

Chicago, Dec. 10.—What is wrong with the whisky situation in Chicago? I nearly always have kept a little whisky in my office for emergency treatment. I have tried to buy a quart in four different drug stores in the last three days, but connot buy any. Who has the market cornered? Or do we have to buy from bootleggers?

DR. M. J. DONOVAN.

HOW THE COMMON FOLK TRAVEL.

Oconto, Wis., Dec. 20.—Your Dec. 19 edition says Mrs. Roosevelt was asked by a reporter if she did not feel she should stop "gadding about" since the office of price administration and her husband have asked others to do no unnecessary traveling. She was quoted as saying, "As long as I make enough money by writing and pay my own expenses, I feel justified in going to as many meetings and doing as many things as I am asked to do."

Does Mrs. Roosevelt conclude that other people who are traveling are using other people's money to do so? The fact, of course, is that we, the "ordinary" citizens of America, are using our own money but in the case of the President's wife it would appear that such trips as the one to Australia were made with some one else's money, namely the money from we "ordinary" citizens.

The writer does not believe Mrs. Roosevelt paid for the especially constructed bomber that took her to Australia, the special engineering crew which handled the plane, nor the thousands of gallons of gasoline consumed in this frightfully expensive gallivanting.

READER.

PRECEDENCE.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—If Pvt. McIntosh is guilty of desertion and gets 10 years at hard labor, then how much time can Col. Knox and Henry Stimson get for the Pearl Harbor incident which cost thousands of lives and a half million tons of naval ships? Or, why isn't Gen. Patton court martialed for violation of the same article of war as Pvt. McIntosh? I am confident that we have more and better leaders than Patton in a population of more than 130 million. Why couldn't McIntosh be just rebuked like Patton, or just demoted like the colonel who shot the private at Selfridge field, Mich? Perhaps article VIII of the Bill of Rights applies to a privileged class only.

THOMAS F. JENKINS.

"WINSTON CHURCHILL."

New York, Dec. 21.—Please accept my sincere thanks and congratulations on your marvelous editorial this morning on Winston Churchill. Until I read this I wasn't exactly sure how you felt about Mr. Churchill. I personally am a great admirer of just the very things you brought out today and which made me feel so good that I immediately made up my mind as I read it to do this very thing, of writing to say, "Thank you a thousand times!" SAFETY DEPOSIT BOX.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People].—When a husband and a wife share a safety deposit box, does the husband have the right to take over the contents after the death of the wife without consulting any of the authorities?

S. P.

Mere right of access to the box does not necessarily give ownership of the contents but, as a practical matter, it may suffice if the assets are payable to bearer and no other person is ready to contest the ownership. We would expect the safety deposit company to insist on an inheritance tax examination before the box is open. We surgest that you talk with the safety deposit officials.

THIS WAS A BLUE CHRISTMAS FOR TREE DEALERS

Estimate 15,000 Took $100,000 Loss.

A few got drunk. One threw his trees into a bonfire and danced around it. Another, who had come from Montana to make some quick money, exchanged a plane reservation for a coach ticket home. He said somebody had told him Chicago was a sucker town. Then he laughed, wryly.

5,000 Left Out of 17,000.

One of the biggest individual losses was sustained by Arthur Bailey of New Orleans, La. He sat and wept on a pile of evergreens as he told of losing $3,000.

Bailey had eight lots scattered over the city, from Irving Park road and Sawyer avenue to 55th street and South California avenue. He came to Chicago with 17,000 trees, and had 5,000 of them left.

"The only person to make any money out of this," Bailey said, "is the Standard Oil and Commonwealth Edison companies." He explained he rented the lots from the oil concern and the electric company illuminated them for him.

He Has a $64 Question.

Bailey said he didn't know what to do with his unwanted trees, "That's the $64 dollar question," he said. This was his first year in the Christmas tree business and his first in Chicago. He indicated it was his last in both instances.

William G. Newbould, 8000 South Chicago avenue, who has been selling Christmas trees for 25 years, said this was the first year in 10 that he had lost money, and that his loss amounted to $700. He sold 500 trees, and yesterday burned the 540 he didn't sell.

Newbould, who gets around in Christmas tree circles, estimated dealers lost $100,000 on trees this year. Normally, he said, there are about 3,000 merchants handling trees.

15,000 Dealers in Chicago.

"This year," he said, "everybody with a couple of bucks and some credit went into the business. There were 15,000 dealers here. Every one thought the trees would be scarce and no one realized until he was stuck that there was no shortage."

Dealers also said they paid higher prices for trees at the outset of the season, when famine was in prospect, than they were able to sell them for when the market became flooded. Many persons were also believed to have ignored Christmas trees this year, because early season prices were so high.

One dealer summed up the situation thus:

Nicholas Vangelis, of 725 West 17th place, the father of seven children, was busy yesterday closing his personal affairs as he prepared to begin army life tomorrow. His wife, Ann, and the children, the oldest of whom is 13, spent the day with him.

"I've got plenty to fight for," Vangelis said, looking at his family. "I don't mind going, but I will worry about the kids."

Mrs. Vangelis predicted she and the children would get along all right, tho she said she would miss Vangelis for the window washing and heavier tasks he has done about the house.

Vangelis has been employed as the manager of a tavern in Cicero at $55 a week. He figures his army allotment to his wife at $200 a month, so there will be little change in their income. He was inducted Dec. 7 and reports to camp tomorrow.

"We'll miss daddy the most," the children chorused, "and also all the nickels and dimes he gave us."

Newly Born Baby's Body Found in Baggage Room

Frank Robbins, of 5723 South Wells street, baggage attendant at the La Salle street station yesterday found the body of a newly born baby boy in a cardboard box in the station's baggage room. The package was checked on Dec. 11, he said.

Milk Mixture for Stomach Ulcer Acids

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcer pains caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcer acids disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little. Try a bottle; it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Walgreen, Stineway and drug stores everywhere.

U. S. HAS STAKE OF OVER BILLION IN AXIS NATIONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—Americans have unofficial claims against Germany for more than 1 billion dollars, and the final total is expected to be much higher.

The treasury, reporting tonight on the latest tabulation of American owned property abroad, placed the value of United States investments in the six axis countries at $1,070,398,668. Of that amount $769,912,474 is invested in Germany—well above the 450 million dollar value of known axis assets in this country.

The treasury's study was undertaken to determine the extent of this country's financial stakes all over the globe—both as a war aid and as a peace table guide.

The total thus far tabulated runs in excess of 9 billion 200 million dollars, representing investments in 121 countries. Even this figure is incomplete by "several billions," the department said, explaining that all reports have not yet been reviewed.

More than one-third of all United States interests—3 billion 112 million dollars—is invested in Canada, and 623 million dollars in England. American investments exceed 100 million dollars in each of 18 other countries.

PAUL B. JOHNSON, 63, MISSISSIPPI GOVERNOR, DIES

Heart Ailment Is Fatal to State Executive.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Dec. 26 (AP).—Gov. Paul B. Johnson, 63 years old, chief executive of Mississippi, died today after a fight of nearly two months against a heart ailment. He had been unconscious since Christmas eve when he lapsed into a coma.

Gov. Johnson.

Successor Lost Race Once.

Murphree was an unsuccessful candidate for governor in last summer's Democratic primaries when he was indorsed by Johnson. He served as governor once before, advancing from lieutenant governor upon the death of Gov. Henry L. Whitfield in 1927, and finishing nearly a year of Whitfield's term.

Gov. Johnson was born on a small farm at Hillsboro, in Scott county, March 23, 1880, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Benton Johnson, native Mississippians.

He was elected Mississippi's 46th governor in the second primary, Aug. 29, 1939, by a majority of 28,000 votes—the greatest up to then, ever given a Mississippi governor—and took office Jan. 16, 1940.

Was Circuit Judge.

In 1910 Johnson was appointed circuit judge of the 12th judicial district by Gov. Edmond Favor Noel, and at the expiration of a four year term was elected, as required by a change in the constitution, to another four year term. He ran for congress in 1918, defeating Theo G. Bilbo, and was reelected to the 67th congress without opposition.

On Feb. 10, 1915, Johnson was married to Miss Corrinne Venable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Venable of McComb. The couple have two sons, Paul B. Jr. and Lt. Patrick L. Johnson, and an adopted daughter, Peggy Johnson.

DR. LEE DENIES EVER RECEIVING HOPKINS LETTER

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 26 (Special).—Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of Southern Methodist university, reiterated today he did not receive the disputed letter which C. Nelson Sparks charges in his book, "One Man—Wendell Willkie," was written to him last August by Harry Hopkins, intimate friend of President Roosevelt.

Informed that Sparks, former mayor of Akron, O., has exhibited a photostat purporting to be a copy of the original letter and bearing a signature said by Sparks to be that of Hopkins, Lee said, "I did not receive the letter," and added he had no comment.

The letter contained a prediction by the President's right hand man that Willkie would be the next Republican Presidential nominee, and has been interpreted by some as indicating a plan by Hopkins and Willkie to groom Lee for the senate against Sen. Tom Conally [D., Tex.] in 1946. Hopkins denied in Washington yesterday a few hours before the photostat was produced that he wrote the letter or is acquainted with Lee.

JOSEPH NIELSEN, FOE OF LABOR RACKETS, DIES

Joseph Nielsen, for the last 20 years assistant director of the Employers' Association of Chicago, died of a heart attack yesterday in his automobile at Outer drive and Belmont avenue. He was 53 years old, and lived at 5442 Glenwood avenue.

Mr. Nielsen was one of the principal combatants against labor rackets in the late 20s, and he later became known as one of the leading conciliation figures between employer and employe. "Mr. Nielsen made a distinct contribution to employer-employe relations in Chicago," said Gordon L. Hostetter, director of the employers' association.

Before joining the association, Mr. Nielsen had been a personnel director. He is survived by his widow, Frieda, and two sons, Corp. Adrian of the army, and Bennett, a naval student at Northwestern university. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the chapel at 5501 North Ashland avenue.

DR. CHITTENDEN, DISCOVERER OF PROTEIN, IS DEAD

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 26 [Special].—Dr. Russell Henry Chittenden, 87 years old, pioneer in the field of nutrition who discovered protein in food more than half a century ago, died in his home here today. He was director of the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale university from 1898 until he retired in 1922.

Chittenden was a senior in the Scientific school in 1875 when he discovered the presence of glycocoll and glycogen in scallops. This was the first time a free animo acid in living tissue had been isolated, a discovery which added materially to knowledge of the substance that was to become known as protein.

His book, "The Nutrition of Man," published in 1907, became a standard work on nutrition.

Mary Adams' Engagement to Naval Officer Announced

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEWS of romantic interest is being revealed on all sides today. From Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall Adams comes the announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Mary Seymour, to Lt. [j. g.] George B. Young, son of Mrs. Karl Young of New Haven, Conn.

Miss Adams, a member of one of Chicago's oldest and most prominent families, was educated at Dobbs Ferry, and since being introduced to society during the season of 1937-'38 she has been active in the Chicago Junior league, of which her sister-in-law, Mrs. Cyrus Adams III., is president, and at the Children's Memorial hospital. She also has been a Red Cross staff assistant at the blood bank and at Great Lakes.

Lt. Young, whose father was Sterling professor of English at Yale university, was graduated from Yale in 1934 and received his commission at the naval reserve midshipman's school at Northwestern university. He has been teaching at Abbott hall, but was sent recently to Washington, D. C

Other Engagements.

Christmas celebrations continued for a second day in the Greenwood avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. James B. McCahey, who entertained there from 4 to 8 p. m. yesterday to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Claire, to a young naval flyer, Lt. James C. Nolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Nolan of Pasadena, Cal.

Lt. Nolan, who is a flag pilot in the south Pacific area, was not here to receive the congratulations of the McCaheys' friends, whom he probably will not meet until he comes to claim Miss McCahey as his bride during his next leave. Her two younger sisters, Anita Rose and Carol Ann, and one of their brothers, Fred Miller McCahey, a Navy V-12 student at the University of Notre Dame, were present, but the McCahey's other son, Lt. James McCahey jr., was obliged to send his good wishes from Fort Sill, Okla., where he is taking an advanced officers' training course.

Miss McCahey, whose father is president of the board of education, attended Sacred Heart academy and Pine Manor and Rosary colleges. Her fiancé resigned from Annapolis to enlist in the naval air corps in 1939, and recently was awarded the distinguished flying cross. He has been on active duty in the Pacific for the last two years.

Miss McCahey and Lt. Nolan met in Europe in 1939 while she was traveling with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Miller of Milwaukee. Miss McCahey is a volunteer worker with the Red Cross as a senior nurse's aid Miss Anita McCahey is a sergeant in the Red Cross motor corps. Miss Carol McCahey attends the Villa Duchesne in Clayton, Mo.

Further Romantic News.

At a small gathering last night in her home in Lincoln Park west, Mrs. Harrold Bachmann announced the engagement of her daughter, Mary, to Ensign Milton H. Jannone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jannone of Waterville, N. Y. Miss Bachman, whose father was the late Dr. Bachmann, was graduated from the Girls' Latin school and attends Wells college.

Her fiancé received his degree from Hamilton college and was a member of the 15th class in the naval reserve school at Northwestern university. He is on active duty and was unable to be present for yesterday's party. Among the guests was Miss Bachmann's aunt, Mrs. Alvin A. Rehfeld of Sheboygan, Wis.

At a tea at home in Winnetka yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wallach announced the engagement of their daughter, Sally, to Ensign William C. Buttner Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Buttner, also of Winnetka. Miss Wallach is a student at the Principia, which her fiancé attended before entering the navy. He is with the naval air transport service and is stationed in Olathe, Kas.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Sailor of Hinsdale are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Suzanne, to Lt. Landon Dudley Taylor, son of Mrs. Dudley Taylor of Florida, formerly of Kenilworth. Miss Sailor is a graduate of Mount Vernon Seminary. Lt. Taylor was graduated from Princeton university and from the Harvard school of business administration. He now is serving on an army air forces headquarters staff in Colorado Springs, Colo. The wedding will take place next spring.

Today's Calendar.

Today's debutante is Miss Nancy Willetts Nock, who will be receiving with her mother, Mrs. Herbert Somerby Nock, from 4 to 7 p. m. in the Nock home in Evanston. Miss Margot Reynolds, Miss Mary Bachmann, Miss Genie Steuer, Miss Alyce Claghorn, Miss Patricia Holloway, Miss Anamary Evans, Miss Joyce Rinn, and the dubutante's younger sister, Georgene, will assist her. The party will be a simple one. Miss Nock will wear a black crepe gown with touches of baby blue and pink batiste at the neckline and cuffs, and a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Jay Edelstone of East Cedar street are giving a large debut luncheon for their daughter, June, today in the Pump room of the Ambassador East. Miss Edelstone, a graduate of the Girls' Latin school, attends Carleton college. Late in January her parents will be going to Phoenix, Ariz., for a winter vacation.

The beautiful red, white and blue Christmas tree at the Woman's Athletic club will be lighted today for a tea-dance which 150 young people of teen age will attend. Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. is in charge of arrangements for the 4 to 7 p. m. party, an annual event at the club.

Wedding Ceremony.

At 4:30 p. m. today in the Kenilworth home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edwin Jannotta, Miss Stella Skiff Jannotta will become the bride of Capt. William P. A. Kelly of the army air forces, son of Mrs. William P. Kelly of Highland Park. The bride will be attended by four cousins, Miss Ramona Cooke, who will be maid of honor; Mrs. Henry Nickel, whose husband, a captain in the marines, is in the South Pacific; and Judy Orndorff and Rosslyn Fennekohl, who will be flower girls. Rosslyn and her mother, Mrs. Arthur Fennekohl, are here from Houston, Tex.

After a wedding trip to Dallas, Capt. Kelly and his bride will be at home in Wilmington, Del.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Judy Adams (left) and Miss Ann Johnson, holding Princess and Tillie, respectively, two of the puppets that will be performing at 10:30 a. m. and again at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Winnetka Community house. The Chicago Junior league's Children's theater department is presenting Burr Tillstrom and his puppets in the two shows, for which tickets are available at the Community house and at the league headquarters. The league will send the puppets to Chicago public schools during January and February.

Thru the Looking Glass

The children home from school, particularly the teen agers, are likely to be having skin eruptions these days that they think are mountainous [they usually aren't even very noticeable] and that break their youthful hearts.

Some of this, both dermatologists and psychologists allow, is caused by excitement. The prospect of big, beautiful, grownup parties is so exciting for girls—and a few boys—that it starts up something of an emotional cyclone that upsets digestion and, indirectly, mars the complexion. Then there are the slathers of candy and the food quite unlike their plain school diet—these too are contributing factors.

These pimples, which invariably seem to pop up before the big occasion on which the youngsters want to look their best, can be prevented if they will keep a sensible eye on their diet, drinking lots of water and going easy on the tempting rich things for which they have such a weakness. Once they've arrived, tho, the only thing to do is to camouflage them.

Some of mother's makeup base, especially if it is the fairly heavy variety that is opaque, can be used by both girls and boys. The girls can powder over it. There are also the special cover-up preparations. These are quite heavy and a little tricky in their use, but they're the very best camouflage yet produced. One of them comes in stick form—ideal for use on the unexpected blemish of face or back that is the usual adolescent headache.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

'3 Is a Family' Is All Things to All Playgoers

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Not so long ago a producer was uttering recriminations against reviewers who, he said, brought out their big guns to demolish a play as inoffensive as it was unimportant. The quaintly dubbed legitimate stage, he insisted, should share the movies' privilege of class B production, so intended, so accepted. He clung to that conviction even when it was delicately pointed out to him that a class B movie lands on a double bill with a newsreel and sometimes, if you are lucky, a Donald Duck.

That producer was Brock Pemberton, previous tenant of the Civic theater, but his plea might serve John Golden, his successor, with equal validity. For this time Mr. Golden and his industrious associates have sent us no scintillating "Susan and God," no lovingly prepared duplicate of a delightful comedy like "Claudia," but a class B production entitled "Three Is a Family," a piece more topical than skilful, which has to do with three of the nation's major topics on the home front, namely, babies, the housing problem, and the household problem of peripatetic help.

There were those at the Civic theater Christmas night who started the performance with anticipatory chuckles and ended it in a howling gale of snorts and guffaws amounting in one specific instance, down front right, to such Homeric laughter I hope the management has signed it up for the run.

But from where I sat the major flaw in the Ephrons play was that nothing much happened beyond domestic squabbles between unattractive members of an unprepossessing family until that family called in old Dr. Bartell, a superannuated physician whose near-sighted bumblings are beguiling comedy because they are flawlessly bumbled by lovable 77 year old Charles Burrows, right for the part to the very gleam in his sparse halo of silver hair. He is the best, but belated prescription toward the success of the play.

Mr. Burrows is a joy in this diaper Derby, and Otto Hulett has an air of authenticity as the man who is more valuable at home than abroad at work. Dulcie Cooper looks like the real thing as a maid on the eve of departure, and there are moments early in Eulabell Moore's playing of a beamingly daft Negro when she threatens to be pure Saroyan. But Margaret Irving's sister-in-law is less etched in comic acid than burlesqued in broad crayons, and if Myrtle Tannahill typifies the woman executive, heaven forgive us all for leaving the home.

The younger fry, three assorted sets of young marrieds who [a] have a baby they fight over; [b] are just having a baby with the mother nonchalant and the father suffering the symptoms, and [c] are going to have a baby any minute now—these, I regret to report, failed to look like families, either by twos or threes. The results of the Ephrons' writing, casting, and direction added up to inimical folk who reminded me, inadvertently, of Hamlet. As I watched these play acting husbands and wives, I thought, "What's Hecuba to him, or he to Hecuba?" But my Homeric friend, representing the active opposition, drowned such misgivings in an avalanche of Gargantuan guffaws.

"3 IS A FAMILY."

Farce comedy by Phoebe and Henry Ephron, staged by Mr. Ephron, with a setting by Stewart Chaney. Presented by John Golden, in association with John Pollock and Max Siegel, at the Civic theater Dec. 25, 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wheeler of Los Angeles, Cal., formerly of Hinsdale, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Johnson, to John Robert Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Wood of Riverside. Mr. Wood is stationed at Northwestern university in a navy V-12 training unit.

Dancing Is Better than New Vehicle at Ballet Opening

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

BALLET Theater opened its holiday engagement at the Civic Opera house with two of the season's major expectations, the first Chicago performance of Antony Tudor's "Romeo and Juliet" and the return to the troupe of the beautiful Texan, Nana Gollner, called back from a South American tour to take over some of the classic roles usually danced by Alicia Markova, who is ill.

The richly caparisoned "Romeo and Juliet" turned out to be tepid shadow play. Less the narrative ballet of its billing than a dream fantasy on the Shakespearean theme, it has subtleties of incidental evocation, but it lacks the glowing lyricism, the dark fire, and the sable wings of impending doom that enfold great tragedy. It lacks even the penetration, the poignant brilliance that make Tudor's "Pillar of Fire" magnificent in terms of ballet theater.

Tudor has staged his "Romeo and Juliet" to Delius' jeweled tapestry of a score and in 15th century Italian décor by Eugene Berman, who has devised arches, balconies, and curtains in a flowing production that sometimes sacrifices beauty to expediency, tho, in general, it is a match for superb costumes. But Tudor's lovers, danced by Nora Kaye and Hugh Laing, are puppets who die as they lived, without making you miss a heartbeat. His brawlers in the streets are mincing men without a dagger to their names, shadow boxing. His Mercutio, danced by Jerome Robbins, misses the rapier glitter of the role, miming the "Queen Mab" speech without a glimpse of its meaning. Tudor's own Tybalt is a character in full dimensions, the true Mercutio of the piece, miscast.

There are, of course, moments of true Tudor stature in choreography. The gestures of supplication and denial, for instance, between Juliet and her lady mother. The lovely liquid line of grief presaging Juliet's bier when six caryatids hold high the sculptured folds of mourning doubly sad because it is the white of youth. These things are vivid, memorable theater, but they dissolve in the misty texture of the whole, a vaporous love story in which there is no love.

Love, and hard work, too, have gone into Miss Gollner's dancing since we saw her last. Her "Princess Aurora" had clarity, a new note of authority, and the luster of a budding brilliance. She has her own little trademark now, a dainty finesse in putting her feet to the floor when Anton Dolin, a magnificent partner, released her as if she were the most fragile and cherished of porcelains. "Aurora" also held an effective "Bluebird," with Rosella Hightower dancing more than ever like Danilova and with Andre Eglevsky a virtuoso partner, while John Kriza had some sunny moments in the pas de trois.

The matinee also offered "Peter and the Wolf," an engaging performance which had recaptured much of the old charm, despite an entanglement that mauled the finale.

Civic Opera house last night. It was not in all respects one which fully revealed Tschaikowsky as a ballet composer, an important and fairly neglected part of his activities, for it included Dolin's restaging of "Swan Lake," the pas de deux from "Nutcracker," the third performance of "Princess Aurora" in two days, together with the Massine-Chagall "Aleko," based on the trio in memory of Nicholas Rubinstein, a work which was a particular favorite of the composer, and which it would undoubtedly have surprised, perhaps dumfounded, him to hear and see in this form.

"Aleko," of course, took central attention in this billing. Massine made his first appearance of the season in his own creation and was at the height of his particular vivid brilliance. Tho you may get a bit entangled in some of the symbolism of "Aleko," the dancing and personality of Massine are as direct and sharp as a blade of steel. Scarcely less vivid was Hugh Laing, who invested the role of the gypsy with the same dark, vital intensity which make his Romeo memorable. The subtlety which is Nora Kaye's outstanding quality is lost on the part of Zemphira, tho there is no denying the craftsmanship and competence she brings to the character. The multitude of minor parts and the bustling fulsomeness of the ensemble again revealed the completeness of detail which seems to be outstanding in each Ballet Theater production.

"Swan Lake" was delightful for its clean line and effortless precision. Nana Gollner accomplished a radiant display of every classic artifice, and was ably seconded by Paul Petroff. The soloists, tho, by no means dominated a nearly perfect performance in which the four cygnets of Albia Kavan, Rozsika Sabo, Virginia Wilcox, and Muriel Bentley came in for particular attention from the audience.

Sally Appeals for Clothes to Assist Needy

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

We hope some readers can provide woman's clothing, size 14, and shoes, size 7, for Miss X. After more than three years in the hospital, she is back home, but she must wear a brace and attend a clinic regularly for treatment. It will be impossible for her to continue her clinic visits unless she can obtain warm clothing. She is supported by relatives who have a very small income and can not provide this help for her.

There are eight children in the H. family. The father is working, but his income is not sufficient to pay all the living expenses and provide clothing for all the children. There are girls, 9, 7, and 2 years old, and 6 months old; the boys are 13, 12, 11, and 5 years old. Readers who have children's clothing for youngsters of any of these ages may obtain further information by communicating with this department.

Both Mrs. T. and her husband have been ill and under medical care for several years. Their income is small and the expenses of their illness leave them with little money for food and shelter. The children, including girls 15, 7, 4, and 2 years old, and a boy 9, are all in need of clothing.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 26.—The most ironic event of the week: Metro, our biggest studio, can't find a house in which to show "A Guy Named Joe," so it will be ineligible for the Academy award, which, in my opinion, it would win hands down. What a picture! Never a dull moment. Teaming of Irene Dunne and Spencer Tracy is by way of being terrific. This is the picture we've been waiting for. Many of our actors had to go overseas before we realized what a fine performer Ward Bond is. In this he has many Clark Gable qualities. Van Johnson is going up the ladder so fast, if he isn't careful, he'll find himself with star rating before New Year's. Vic Fleming has done a magnificent job. Let's not forget Lionel Barrymore, who plays the boss of heaven, with a couple of speeches we should memorize. Nor Jimmy Gleason. I don't as a rule find myself in a lather over a picture. But "A Guy Named Joe" got me.

Happy New Year.

There's no truth to the rumor that Joan Barry's lawyer and Charlie Chaplin's are getting together for a settlement. Joan is waiting for February, when the blood test will be made. They'll go on from there. Charlie's had a busy year, what with the Joan Barry case, and marrying a girl who had just turned 18. Now he's signed a new co-star for his film. Alice Ealand is a bit older. She's 24. She was introduced by his great friend, Robert Arden. Joan met him thru another great friend, Tim Durant. I understand Orson Welles was guilty of introducing him to Oona O'Neill. From things I've learned, Charlie, who contributed $25,000 to the Communist cause and $100 to the Red Cross, soon will find himself involved with something almost as serious as the Barry case.

Lay That Accent Down, Babe.

Martha Outlaw and Karen Gaylord, two southern editions of cover girl, are taking lessons to get rid of that accent. Why, honey child, don't you know that's the most appealing thing about you? Incidentally, Karen soon will be married to Ted Knoll, civil engineer. . . . Mady Christians couldn't get back to her home in New Canaan, Conn., for a white Christmas. She's tied up, but good, in "Address Unknown." . . . Even the razzle dazzle of the holidays hasn't kept our biggies from hearing Maurice Rocco nightly at the Clover club. He's a performer's dream man. . . . Why Jess Barker! What do you mean—dining alone, when we have so many hungry girls around town? . . . Jerome Zerbe of the navy spent a few days in town, and while here, photographed Rosalind Russell in that pink battlefield she calls a bed. It's really a beauty and the biggest one in town. Then went over to Paulette Goddard's, and got a shot of Paulette in her bed with a Renoir hanging above it.

Can't Lose.

David Selznick, the optimist, will premiere "Since You Went Away" at Easter time. Dayton, O., wants the opening. The author came from there. Atlanta, for sentimental reasons, wants it too. Going back to the opening of "Gone with the Wind" down there, the late Laura Hope Crews told me this: The company flew but, for safety, she took the train—and found herself involved in a wreck. She arrived when a round of parties had started. She hadn't had any food for 24 hours, and at a beautiful mansion where they were being entertained, she was handed a box. She, thinking it was filled with sandwiches, opened it, only to discover it was a present of half a dozen after-dinner coffee cups with famous Atlanta scenes on each! . . . Congratulations to Jerry and Henrietta Hoffman, who are celebrating their 20th wedding anniversary today, and still speaking to each other. And 18 of those years have been spent in Hollywood.

Plan Special Yule Treats for Children

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In some families when each December 25 ends, the Christmas holidays end, too [in spirit, I mean], except that most of the grownups celebrate New Year's eve. In other families, in peace times, the whole week between Christmas and New Year's day is filled with the spirit of play.

But this is war. All of us are aware of its shadow over us. In some homes there cannot possibly be any lightness of heart. Still, in those families where there are children, I believe mothers and fathers should make this week which follows the loveliest of all holidays, as happy and as enjoyable to their sons and daughters as they can.

If possible, put aside the everyday duties as much as you can for this pleasant time between Christmas and New Year's. Almost everywhere there are special events planned for children. Almost everywhere there are interesting or festive things that mothers and fathers can enjoy with their children.

If you live where you must create your own fun, or if you're wise enough to do that anyhow, there are all sorts of pleasant things, such as games, little trips, visits to museums, an airport or other places of interest, informal parties, luncheon at a restaurant, a matinee at a real play, a marionette show, or general sight-seeing in a big city.

Any kind of fun that involves dressing up has a great appeal for some children. Charades and home-written plays independently produced by the children may have the family and neighbors for audience.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The story is as banal as the title. Discounting the fact that the cast is composed of capable players—who should have laid back their ears and refused to appear in such a dumb show—the movie isn't worth a minute of your consideration—or a bit more space.

See you tomorrow.

Ladies of Isabella Give Cheer Party Tomorrow

The Juana Henonepin council of the Ladies of Isabella will give a Christmas cheer party tomorrow at the Catholic Social center, 308 South Sangamon street. This is one of the series of such events sponsored by the many Chicago councils for charitable institutions for orphans, aged and unfortunate persons.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

HELP GARNERED.

Neal strode back to the corral. In two curt sentences he put the facts before his men.

"I'm going up into the gap to see what I can do to stop this foolishness," he continued. "If you've got any sense, you'll stay here on the job; if you're as big a lunkhead as I am you'll ride up there with me and maybe get yore heads shot off."

Pete Driskill freed the rope he had just tossed around the neck of a blasting calf.

Tim Owen scratched his red head and grinned. "I done been there once and didn't like the company I met. I'd be plumb crazy to go again, but I reckon I'll mosey along."

The other man in the corral asked for more information from Miller, and after getting it decided that he would stay where he was.

"Cross treated me mighty bad one time," he explained. "I guess I won't butt in."

"You're certainly smart," Driskill agreed ironically, "for Cad Clemson's gunman would be liable to treat you a whole lot meaner if you went."

"There's no obligation for Yorky to go if he doesn't want to," Neal said. "We'd better get off right away, boys."

As they saddled he gave instructions to Yorky to ride to Sundog and urge Sheriff Cullen to start a posse from there at once. To Janet he said: "We ought to get the word to the Triangle R, too. Can you send Harry over with a message?"

"I'll go myself," the girl promised. "And then I'll see Mr. Muir at the Blue Bell."

"Dr. Seneca has been in the Gap two or three times," MacGowan told Yorky. "I think Cullen would get him to guide a posse in. Russ will return to the gateway to bring them to the right place."

"Sure," asserted Miller with a wry grin. "I've done managed to get both sides in this feud sore at me already. The cattlemen want to hang me and now Cad's crowd will pump lead at me when they get a chance, so I might as well go the whole hog."

"Spread the word quick as you can. Rouse the town and the ranches. If any of the Gap men are at Sundog be sure they know how much trouble is brewing."

Yorky's face was flushed. "Let Miss Lane do that. I've decided to go in with you boys."

MacGowan understood his embarrassed shame. "That's fine, Yorky, but you can do more good outside. After you have got things moving you can come in with a posse if you like."

While the men looked to their weapons and ammunition Janet helped the Mexican cook pack in saddlebags all the prepared food in the house. She hovered about Neal as he disposed of the supplies on the mounts. There was no time to bother with a pack horse.

This lean tough man had never seemed to her more remote than now. The thought stabbed her that the message she had brought might be sending him to his death.

She murmured, knowing the uselessness of it, "You'll be awfully careful, won't you?"

In his laughter there was mockery rather than mirth. "O, yes, we'll be careful."

Swift compunction seized her. She could not be responsible for his death, even to save Austin. "Don't go because I asked you, Neal. Maybe you can't do anything. Maybe——"

"It will work out all right, Janet," he told her gently. "I'll bring him back to you alive."

"I've never thrown down on myself yet," he answered, shortly, and swung to the saddle.

"He sure flings his shadow a long way," Yorky said, his admiring eyes followed the man who signed his pay checks. "What has he got that will make men jump at the chance to ride with him into such a hell-broth as this? Neither Pete nor Tim has any call to go risking his life on such a crazy business—nor Neal himself for that matter. What have these cattlemen ever done but act like he has the smallpox? Not a week ago they burned up his hay and sent him an anonymous letter to get out or be killed. Now he's starting out to try to save their lives. No sense to it.

"Do you think so?" Janet asked anxiously.

"There are probably 50 outlaws and rustlers to settle the hash of the fool cowmen who went into the Gap. They will get them sure. And when our boys butt in they'll get wiped out, too." Yorky was doing his grumbling out loud, trying to satisfy his conscience that he had been right in declining to go. "And me, I'll feel like a coyote because I didn't slap a saddle on a bronc right off and go whooping into the outlaws' nest with Neal."

Janet felt her stomach muscles sink at Yorky's prediction. If anything harmful befell these three men it would be her fault. She had thought Austin Reynolds so conservative and law-abiding, yet he had been swept away by it, too. He had not wanted to go. She knew that.

Eleanor flashed to her mind. She ought to let her know what was taking place, since, of course, she would want to come home as quickly as she could.

"Will you send a telegram for me when you get to Sundog?" she asked Yorky.

"Sure, ma'am," he promised.

Janet went into the house, found paper and pencil, and wrote a message to be wired to Eleanor.

Eleanor read the telegram as she was starting to dress to go to the afternoon reception for the President. The message said:

To her friend, who was doing up her hair before the mirror, Eleanor said abruptly, "I've got to go home, Ann."

Ann read the message. Her eyes grew wide. "But, my gracious, this is dreadful!" she exclaimed. "How in the world did Austin ever get into such a mess? He's so . . . so conservative."

"I don't know. The feeling is very bitter. Neal is going into it, too, Janet says."

"Who is Janet?"

"It's so mixed up." Ann frowned at the paper in her hand. "You told me Neal and Austin aren't friendly—and that the other cattlemen hated your wild man."

"They do. But that's just like Neal. He's . . . quixotic. Fights for the underdog. I've got to catch the first train."

Steamed raisin pudding: Sift 2¼ cups cake flour [sifted once before measuring] with 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup sugar. Add 1 cup raisins. Beat 1 egg and combine with ¾ cup milk and 2 tablespoons melted margarine. Add liquid to flour all at once, and beat until smooth. Steam in well greased mold [one quart size or two smaller ones] or in the greased top of your double boiler for one hour or until done. Serve with lemon sauce or hard sauce made with margarine and flavored with a little sherry.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Meatless dishes which taste as tho they had meat in them have been popular lately. A new version of the rice-onion-tomato loaf or casserole contains ripe olives, and is seasoned with chili powder. It has a lot of good flavor.

Savory Casserole.

1 cup uncooked rice
¼ cup salad oil
½ cup chopped onion
2 small cloves garlic
1 cup sliced celery
2 cups cooked tomatoes
2 cups cooked peas or green beans
½ cup chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons chili powder
¾ cup water
½ cup grated American cheese

Boil rice in salted water until tender, then drain. Heat oil in skillet. Add onion, garlic, and celery. Cook gently for 5 minutes and remove garlic. Add tomatoes, vegetable, and ripe olives. Bring to boil. Blend flour, salt, and chili powder with water and stir into hot mixture. Cook and stir until mixture boils briskly. Pour half of sauce into baking pan. Cover with rice. Pour remaining sauce over rice and sprinkle with cheese. Bake 30 minutes at 400 degrees.

Pork neckbones cost you no points and contain much good meat flavor. Fix them this way, with great economy.

Pork Neckbones and Dressing.

[Serves four.]

1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup chopped celery
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme or marjoram
½ medium onion, finely chopped

Sprinkle neckbones with the 1½ teaspoons salt and the pepper. Toss rest of ingredients together lightly with a fork, place in well greased baking pan and top with neckbones. Bake about 2 hours at 350 degrees.

Spareribs are only 2 points a pound, and 7 points will take care of six persons nicely, if the ribs are stuffed. In this recipe breakfast wheat biscuits and bread crumbs form the basis for the stuffing.

Stuffed Spareribs.

[Serves six.]

3 tablespoons fat
1 cup chopped onion
3 wheat biscuits, crumbled
2 cups bread crumbs
1 cup celery, chopped
2 cups chopped apples
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning or sage
2½ tablespoons brown sugar
About 3½ pounds spareribs

Cook onion in fat until tender. Add other ingredients for stuffing, mix lightly. Ribs should be in two sections. Rub with salt and pepper and place stuffing between two sheets. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours.

Yale Alumni in Uniform Invited to Club Party

Yale men stationed in Chicago with the services have been invited to the annual fathers and sons luncheon of the Chicago Yale club at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday in the Crystal room of the Palmer House. They need not make reservations. Alumni and undergraduates are expected at the luncheon, which is also the annual meeting, and at which Norman Buck, dean of freshmen, and Howard Odell, football coach, will speak. A color movie, "Yale at War," will be shown. Thomas A. Connors is the retiring president of the club.

Jewish Group Meeting.

The board of directors of Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women will meet at 10:30 a. m. today at headquarters.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Dessert Pancakes.

1 cup flour
Dash of salt
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 cup dark brown sugar
1¼ cups buttermilk
1 teaspoon melted margarine
2 eggs, well beaten

Sift dry ingredients together. Add brown sugar to buttermilk and stir to dissolve. Add with margarine to beaten eggs and stir into dry ingredients. Bake on well greased hot griddle, in thin cakes. Place on hot platter, with margarine spread between cakes; cut in four to six sections and serve with apple sauce.

Handsome Frock

One of the most ingenious ways designers have of simulating the popular dirndl skirt, in spite of fabric restrictions, is to narrow the waistline down to the least common denominator and then give deft fulness to the skirt. This frock exemplifies this designing magic. Style No. 3405 is designed for sizes 12 to 42. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Print Dresses Are Attractive and Practical

BY REA SEEGER.

New prints are out—fresh, colorful dresses in simple silhouette, with such interesting details as hip bows, bows to accentuate the new square cut outline of the neck, short sleeves, and straight line skirts.

These exhilarating new midwinter prints are the kind of dresses to buy for extra duty. They may be worn now under winter coats of fur or fabric, later with wool jackets in vivid contrast colors, and still later in late spring and early summer without jackets.

What will delight the exacting shopper is the small printed pattern, which will not spread the figureline. This is important, for prints tend to make the figure look larger than solid dark colors. The printed designs are new and fascinating—red clover blossom, a birdcage design, a lovely blurred lily of the valley, and the usual floral offerings of garden and hot house blooms.

Both the time tested two piece and the simple one piece dresses are plentiful in these new print collections, along with the clever models with the simulated two piece effects, achieved with a curved fold around the hipline to fake a peplum or jacket edge.

The skirt and jacket combinations are to be worn as suit dresses, but later in the season to wear with other skirts and jackets of contrasting color.

School Secretaries Will Start Winter Sessions Tomorrow

School secretaries from over the state will be registering tonight at the Morrison hotel for the fourth annual winter meeting of the Illinois Association of School Secretaries, scheduled tomorrow at the hotel. Registration will begin at 6 p. m. and there will be a 7 o'clock dinner in the Piccadilly tearoom, 410 South Michigan boulevard.

Dr. R. W. Fairchild, president of the Illinois State Normal university, who is to be the principal speaker, will appear at tomorrow's luncheon session, and others on the day's program will include W. C. Handlin, president of the Illinois Education association; Mrs. Charlotte Meyer, honorary president of the Illinois Association of School Secretaries; and Miss Betty Zimmerman, president of the national association.

Conferences will begin at 10 a. m. tomorrow, under the direction of Miss Ruth McNutt, state president.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

In a large proportion of games the declarer can "place" missing aces and kings because of bids made or not made by the opponents. This, however, only rarely applies to queens or lower honors. In a deal such as the following the uncertainty regarding a queen is the prime consideration in planning the play.

East, dealer.

NORTH
♥ A Q J
♦ A K J 10 8

WEST
♠ A 5
♥ 9 8 7 5
♦ 9 4

EAST
♠ 4 2
♥ K 6 4 3 2
♦ Q 5 2
♣ 7 3 2

SOUTH
♠ K J 10 8 6 3
♥ 10
♦ 8 7 6
♣ K 8 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 club	Double
Pass	2 spades	Pass	3 spades
Pass	4 spades

The bidding was sound thruout.

West opened the heart nine. Declarer was tempted to play the jack from dummy, but a little reflection saved him from this grievous error. It was apparent that if East could gain the lead, a club return thru the king would be fatal. Thus, the whole problem resolved itself into a struggle to keep East off the lead, which was all the argument needed against playing the heart jack to the first trick.

Declarer hit upon a far sounder and safer plan. He put up the heart ace and returned the heart queen. East, reading the true state of affairs, unhesitatingly ducked, but this did not bother South. He was quite willing for West to win this trick, if he could, so South nonchalantly discarded a diamond. The heart queen holding, declarer now led to the trump king. West won and exited with a heart. Declarer ruffed, cashed the trump jack, then cashed the ace and king of diamonds. A third diamond lead, ruffed by South, set up two more diamond tricks in dummy upon which declarer discarded two of his clubs.

It is to be feared that many declarers would take the diamond finesse in this deal, overlooking the fact that West's bid and East's passes could not place so low an honor as a queen.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Miss Katherine Jane Hoffman, a nurse on the staff of the Illinois Research hospital until her enlistment in the army nurse corps, will report to Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., Thursday. In so doing, she will be repeating her mother's nursing service in World War I.

Miss Hoffman is the eldest of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hoffman, whose war time romance led to marriage in 1919, shortly after both returned from France. Mr. Hoffman was a lieutenant of coast artillery, and Mrs. Hoffman was Anita Jane Eddy, army nurse.

Like her mother, Katherine Hoffman is a graduate of the St. Luke's hospital school of nursing. She completed her training in October, 1942, and her mother in 1914. The then Miss Eddy became a Red Cross nurse assigned to the army shortly after the United States entered the war, and was sent overseas in June, 1918.

KATHERINE HOFFMAN.

Another army nurse from Chicago, 2d Lt. Vera C. Gustafson, was in on leave for a few days this week to visit her family at 535 Leamington avenue. During the last year, Lt. Gustafson has been stationed at the 27th air evacuation hospital at Elkins, W. Va., with the University of Illinois medical unit.

Red Cross volunteer nurses' aids who have served at Michael Reese hospital will be guests at a party at 8 o'clock tonight in the nurses' residence, 2816 Ellis avenue.

Miss Marguerite Green and Mrs. Dorothy Ziv are in charge of arrangements for the event, to which have been invited as special guests Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, chairman of the volunteer nurses' aid corps of the Chicago chapter; Mrs. Eugene Talbot, vice chairman; Mrs. Corinne Robinson and Mrs. Molly Salmon, director and assistant director, respectively, of the corps, and Mrs. Elizabeth Burghart, captain of senior aids in the southeast district.

"The emergency committee of the Radar-Radio Industries of Chicago, representing 44 manufacturers of equipment and devices for the army and navy, has set a goal of at least 4,000 more women to be recruited at once for Chicago's radio plants.

Charles M. Hofman, chairman of the emergency committee, reports that the industry has the complete coöperation of the army, navy, war man power commission and United States employment service in its drive to get women to make the important equipment, without which planes and ships cannot engage in warfare.

Women not now working in war jobs are urged, whether they have training or not, to get in touch with their nearest U. S. E. S. office and enroll in radar-radio industry. The companies will train workers, with pay, on the job.

White Collar GIRL

After Christmas Sales.

Customers are funny
[So am I]
They want plenty for their money
[So do I]
They shop and shop and shop around
Inspect each shirt and tie,
But—confidentially—I've found
So do I!

DEPARTMENT STORE SAL.

And Mr. Merry and Mr. Happy.

The meeting of Mrs. Sweet and Mrs. Sauer in a Chicago office reminds me of an experience when I was introducing visitors last March in Camden, Me. One caller said: "I'm glad you didn't introduce us. My name is Cilly and his"—pointing to another guest—"is Batty."

Apropos of the legal steno in her 60s who likes to work: She is a top-notch stenographer with vim, vigor, and vitality. She has more snap than many a young one. And she can make you step lively to keep pace with her.

I should know. I worked with her. So, here's hoping her banners keep sailing on top of the mast!

XANTIPPE.

It Sticks in the Mind.

The huge, make-believe, cardboard red and white candy cane that adorns the door of a fashion artist's studio.

The delightful holiday greetings, one with a lace paper white collar, another with the drawing of a collar on the envelop, and still others, addressed to Nosey Parker, in care of this department.

The booklet, "It's News To Me," sent by the Fred Herendeens and Fred's bright paragraphs, beginning with the verse—

Under the shedding Christmas tree
A look of care upon her face
A vacuum in her hands.

The pretty girl hurrying along 55th street, packages under each arm and a laundry bag slung nonchalantly over her shoulder.

The rows and rows of service men and women around the telegraph desk at the La Salle street station. . . . The barefoot woman, still a mystery to all who saw her. . . . the sedate suburbanite carrying a rocking chair. . . . the glad reunions and brief partings at each gate.

Holiday Cheer.

May I spell the word cheer with five concrete suggestions? Count your blessings. Have faith in God. Exhibit optimism in speech. Express sympathy for others. Refuse to be idle.

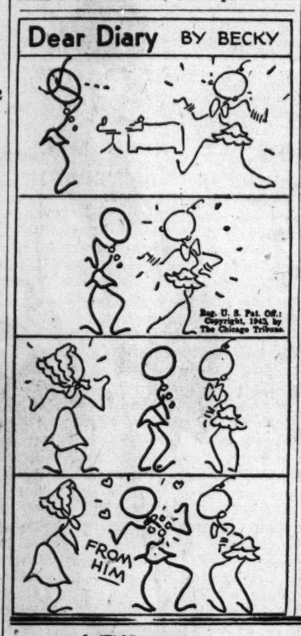
Dear Diary BY BECKY



Your Career Is Important; Give It Thought

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Come those high school days, every Jill and Jackson begins to get a new and strange urge to do something worthwhile and their thoughts turn toward the big time. Sometimes it hits when you're a freshman, sometimes it creeps up when you're a junior, and sometimes you don't feel that prod till you're well on in your senior year. But somewhere, between dating, dancing, and listening to Harry James recordings, ambition begins to shake a leg. And every character begins to realize that he doesn't want to go thru life a sad Sam, without a talent to call his own. He wants to be John Doe, American, written in capital letters. Interest may turn to medicine, teaching, modeling, or engineering or, as in the letter that follows, to acting.

on the SOLID side

"I don't have a problem to discuss, I just want to tell you something. Ever since I was a small girl I've dreamed and planned to be an actress. I know that so many girls say the same thing but most of them are just infatuated and if they realized the hardships that come with being an actress they would quit very quickly. But I have thought of all those things and am trying to pave my own way by starting now.

"I know it's the only thing I'll ever want to do and I have spoken to my school counselor and she thinks it is all right for me to have such an ambition. I've begun by taking one semester of dramatics and public speaking—that is all that is allowed in our school. We give plays each year and since I am a Junior I am going to try very hard to get a part in our Junior Class play. Whenever possible, I go to movies to study acting technique and try to improve my own voice, without sounding affected, in ordinary conversation. I should like to be on the screen but the stage is my real goal. I want to finish school first but in the meantime—am I on the right path?"

She certainly is on the right path—and with bells on! Any girl who has her life's ambition all thought over in black and white, realizes the importance of finishing school and acquiring a general education, and still finds time on the side for a little personal coaching—that honeychile has gone a long way toward getting the show on the road! And she's singing the right pitch by admitting she doesn't expect the work to be all steak and gravy.

Try to figure out right now what you'd like to do with your time and talent and sign yourself to a lifetime contract of good, hard work. Because success, unlike voting, isn't something that has to wait till you're twenty-one.

7th Annual Hanukkah Breakfast Will Be Held This Morning

With reservations totaling more than 1,000, the seventh annual Hanukkah breakfast sponsored by the Chicago Women's division of the American Jewish congress is to be held at 10:30 a. m. today in the grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel. Many Catholic and Protestant guests are to be present at the festival, which will be highlighted by the traditional candle lighting ceremony.

Dr. Michael Williams, founder of the Catholic magazine Commonweal, will come from Connecticut to address the gathering, and Dr. Leon Kubositzki, formerly of Liege, Belgium, who is now chairman of the European committee on advisory affairs of the World Jewish congress, also will speak. Mrs. Robert L. Aronson is president of the hostess group and Mrs. Ben Goldfiger is in charge of arrangements.

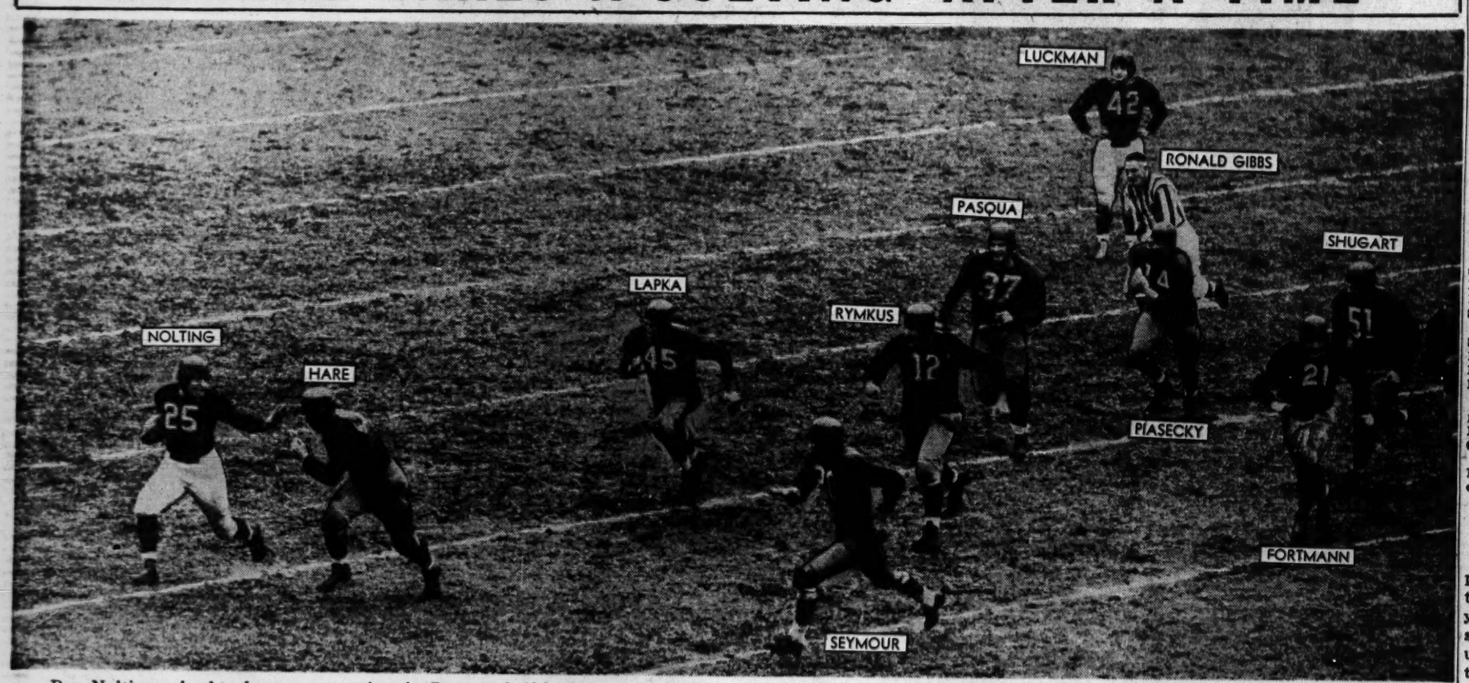
NOLTING TAKES A JOLTING—AFTER A TIME



Ray Nolting, who has been representing the Bears at half back for so long that a national title game with the Redskins is just another Sunday afternoon's work, finally is closed in on by a bevy of Washington tacklers in yesterday afternoon's championship game in Wrigley field, but not until he had picked up a creditable gain. The Bears won, 41 to 21. The total receipts broke the all time record for title play.

The Chicago Bears once more are professional football champions of the world. They won back the title yesterday from the Washington Redskins in a 41 to 21 battle, which utterly fails to give a hint to the terrific 60 minute struggle witnessed by 34,320 in Wrigley field.

In winning, the Bears qualified for the 11th annual College All-Star game to be played next fall under auspices of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Sid Luckman was the leading man in the Bears' dramatic pushback to the heights. The black haired fellow from Brooklyn fired five touchdown passes, two more than any passer in the National league's history had done in any preceding championship battle. And the sixth touchdown? That one went to old Bronko Nagurski, who turned back the years in a smashing exhibition at full back.

Baugh Leaves Game.

The crowd, which contributed to a record gate of $120,500.05 for a title game, saw Sammy Baugh leave the field after one play in the first quarter. For the remainder of the half he sat on the bench, crying, while physicians tried to determine if he had suffered a concussion.

Players on both sides limped off the field thruout the bitterly fought battle. That is—all but one of the injured. He was Dr. Jim Logan of the Bears, a former Indiana guard, who was carrried from the gridiron on a stretcher. He was in Illinois Masonic hospital last night with a possible concussion. On this same play, Harry Clark, who caught two of Luckman's dazzlers for scores, had to leave the game, but he came back.

Later in the game Baugh returned and fired two touchdown passes, but this was strictly a Luckman day. The chubby quarter back and master of the Bears' intricate T formation, made his last game in war time football by far his best. He intercepted two passes and he ran brilliantly on quarter back sneak plays, once traveling 24 yards. Luckman will report to the maritime service in New York as an ensign on Jan. 3. He made 64 yards in 8 attempts and completed 14 out of 26 passes for 276 yards in leading the Bears to their sixth professional title.

Bear Line Sparkles.

The Bears, inactive since Nov. 28, when they whipped the Cardinals for the Western division championship, were benefited greatly by the long layoff. The linemen, who weren't supposed to measure up to the Redskins' stalwarts, were vicious. The Bears' secondary plunged forward to smother the Washington running attack and limit it to 45 yards. The Bears smashed thru for 168 yards in this department. They had 276 yards on passing for a total of 444. Baugh completed seven passes in 11 tries for 106 yards and George Cafego three of 11 for 76, or a total of 182. In all, the Redskins gained only 227 yards.

The first of several players to be shaken up was the Redskins' Joe Pasqua, who needed assistance after Ray Hare had returned Bob Snyder's kickoff from the 15 to his 30. Joe stayed in the game, tho. Bulldog Turner, who was a busy gent all day for the Bears, slammed thru and nailed Farkas after he had gained a yard, and on the next play, got Andrew for a 3 yard loss. The upshot of all this was the entrance of Baugh, who kicked 44 yards to Luckman. As Luckman was tackled, Baugh flopped to the turf after being kicked and was led from the field, to be seen no more until the

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THIS department welcomes the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football league, to the 1944 All-Star game. . . . They proved their right at Wrigley field yesterday to represent professional football in sport's most glamorous contest. . . . The incentive of participation in the All-Star game had more than a little to do with the heights to which they rose against the Redskins. . . . The National league's championship engagement proved that a month of inactivity is no handicap to a good gridiron unit. . . . The Bears never were sharper in their blocking and tackling this season than they were yesterday afternoon. . . . The title game also gave convincing evidence that Sid Luckman of the Bears and Sammy Baugh of the Redskins are two of the greatest performers American football has produced. . . . It may be a long time before we again see their likes on the same field. . . . For a fellow who can't seem to hold a job, Buck Newsom's all-time record compares favorably with those of a lot who can. . . . In 13 big league seasons Buck has won 159 games while losing 154 and quite a few of those seasons were spent with clubs which were going no place. . . . Nineteen forty-four will mark the 75th anniversary of the first intercollegiate football game. . . . The principals were Rutgers and Princeton and the contest was played in New Brunswick, N. J. . . . The Yankees, with Paul Schreiber and the Athletics with Paul Keefe, are the only two major league clubs with full time batting practice pitchers. . . . The Yankees claim Schreiber could hit a dime nine times out of 10 at the official hurling distance. . . . Fred Schott of Akron, O., a 205 pound 4-F, is the newest sensation of the heavyweight ranks, where sensations are rare indeed these days. . . . Schott, deferred because of a football knee, has won five straight fights by knockouts. . . . He is managed by Bill Daly, who also directs Lee Savold. . . . Harry C. Good, Indiana's new basketball coach, is, in contrast to Branch McCracken, his predecessor, a calm, easy going gent. . . . Thus, when the Hoosiers and Purdue meet for the first time Jan. 8, Piggy Lambert of the Boilermakers will have the histrionic rights all to himself. . . . George McQuinn, the Browns' first baseman, manages a movie house in Falls Church, Va., from October to March.

Frank Massaro, 190 pound Eureka [Cal.] High school back, threw a 68 yard completed forward pass against Weed High on Thanksgiving day. . . . Frank fired from his own 22 yard line to his opponents' 10. . . . Pacific coast football writers asked Slip Madigan about Indiana's Bob Hoernschemeyer, who will play with the All-East squad in San Francisco's Shrine game. . . . "He's big, listed 175, but looks like 195," answered Madigan. "He passes well. He kicks well. He's fast. He runs like the dickens from any formation and he's liable to take a punt and go thru you at any time." . . . Comdr. I thought your readers might be interested in the following which was contained in a letter from my soldier husband on Attu: "Corp. Yashida is a Jap, who was a member of Company "M" until the time the United States declared war on Japan. He was liked by all the boys, proud to be an American soldier, and, when the Pearl Harbor tragedy occurred, was sorry to leave for another camp. As a token of his feelings, he presented a silk American flag to his company. It was hung in a prominent place in the mess hall. Big John Bahun, the mess sergeant, vowed it would go with the outfit wherever it might be sent. When we attained victory on Attu, a frantic search was made for a flag to raise. None could be found, but suddenly the sergeant remembered Corp. Yashida's gift. Now it flies proudly over this outpost."

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Dec. 26.—Capt. Ray Coates, as fine a prep football player as you will find in a nation-wide search, and his teammates from Jesuit High school, handed Chicago's Mount Carmel eleven a 12 to 0 defeat this afternoon on a muddy gridiron in City Park stadium. From the first period, in which the Blue Jays took a 6 to 0 lead on a touchdown pass by Coates, Jesuit held an advantage and it finished the game with another master throw by Coates for the final tabulation.

Jesuit's light and fast backs had a margin in ground gained by rushing but this probably would have been insufficient to escape a scoreless tie. However, with Coates throwing, the Blue Jays could not be denied. The Jesuit captain completed four of his seven attempts and, in addition to outscoring Mount Carmel 74 yards to 17 by this means of attack, he supplied all the points.

Caravan Defense Good.

Fifteen thousand—a crowd which fell below expectations because of the chill, damp day—saw the Chicago youngsters lose their first game of the year. Mount Carmel, co-champions of Chicago, was beaten, but the Caravan played doggedly on defense and twice in the third period threatened to tie the score.

It is a matter of record, also, that Mount Carmel had practiced only two days since the team tied St. George last month, and while the boys fought with determination, their attack lacked the coherence of the championship season. Bob

Everybody but Weather Man Is Rude to Poor Redskins

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

All in all, it was a rude awakening for the Redskins.

Yes, rude is the word. The Chicago Bears were extremely rude, as their 41 to 21 victory attests. The general manager, the clubhouse boy, the ushers, and the guardians of law and order were rude to the point of being downright nasty, as George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington club, vociferously declaims.

And the new champions were as rude as all get out on the field, time after time showing inordinate impoliteness by tackling viciously and stopping their opponents' forward progress by hurling their big frames smack dab against the ball carrier.

Marshall Escorted Off Field.

To hear some of the Redskins tell it, about the only fellow in Chicago yesterday who wasn't rude was the weather man who, for that matter, probably was enjoying a day off.

It really wasn't that bad, however, for the Redskins, champions of the National Football league, Washington, D. C., New York City and points east stayed in and pitched until the final gun crack before giving up their title, and Mr. Marshall, ejected just before the first half intermission, also found his way back to the field and was in on the proceedings thereafter.

His crime, its seems, and as he puts it, was his desire to be with his players on the field before the half ended but his presence was discovered by Ralph Brizzolara, Bears' general manager, and he was ordered from the field.

The duty fell upon the clubhouse attendant who escorted Marshall to a squad of box seat ushers, who in turn let a couple of policemen show the Redskins' owner the gate. They apparently left the portals open, for Marshall turned right around and walked back in. His future appearances were without escort.

"Very, very rude to say the least," said Marshall after the beaten Redskins had trooped into their dressing room upon conclusion of the contest. "A first class bush league trick," was Marshall's closing comment.

There wasn't as much beefing in the visitors' dressing room as might be supposed. In fact, the beaten champions were for the most part rather glad that the lengthy season had been concluded, even with defeat.

Inactivity Aided Bears.

In Andy Farkas' words, the loss was charged to the Bear's inactivity since Nov. 28, while the Redskins were beating down the New York Giants in two extra games for the right to enter the championship game.

Farkas, one of the stars in the losing cause, peeled off yardage and yards of tape from his midsection, but then so did Bob Masterson, Wilbur Moore, Lou Rymkus, and others.

Sigillo Is Bears' Unsung Hero; Logan Injured

Dominic Sigillo.

"When the game started," said the old realist, Hunk Anderson of the Bears' coaching staff, "we didn't know whether we had a left tackle or not. But this Sigillo guy soon convinced us we did. He played like a major."

Dr. Jim Logan, the Bears' guard from Indiana, was taken to Illinois Masonic hospital after the game with a concussion suspected. Physicians will know more about Jim's injury today.

From his perch in the upper deck along the third base side, Co-Coach Luke Johnsos called the pass which Harry Clark took for the tying touchdown. Later in the game, Luke called the play on which Jim Benton took a touchdown pass from Luckman deep in the end zone.

The pattern for the Bears' terrific onslaught against the Redskins was set Thursday night when Fred Gillies, the man mountain who is a $1 a year Bear coach, made a 30 minute speech.

"You've got to give those Redskins a beating in that first half," said Fred over and over.

OWNER HALAS FINDS BEARS ARE TERRORS OF OLD

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lt. Comdr. George Halas, owner-coach in absentia of the Chicago Bears, was very much present at the big game yesterday, joined in the whooping clubhouse celebration after the triumph over the Washington Redskins, and enthusiastically expressed the hope the war situation will be such next August that the Bears will participate in the All-Star game sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities.

"I expect to be busy with my navy duties for many months," said Lt. Comdr. Halas, "but if there is a Bear team next August, and I expect there will be, you may be sure the team will be keyed to the competition, as much as it was today—and that's talking in superlatives, for the players did a great job."

Bears' Strategy Perfect.

Halas was one of the first of the mob that jammed the clubhouse after the game. Tho he has not been posing for individual sports photos, the players pulled him into the sweaty, happy grouping arrayed for about a million photogs.

Becoming a football coach in retrospect, Halas said:

"The Bears played the perfect strategy today. They ran over the Redskins early in the game—gave them a terrific physical licking. Thus they restored that old time Bear terror, which hasn't always existed in the last couple of seasons."

Coach Anderson expressed great satisfaction over the way the Bears' plans had worked out. Said Hunk: "Our line play was the outstanding feature of the game. We were outmanned and knew it. We had to get extra duty from several players who previously hadn't had much of a test in tough going."

Praise for Bronko.

Thirty-five year old Bronko Nagurski drew many compliments from Anderson, who said the old timer's mere presence, not to mention his powerful play, instilled confidence in the players that a thousand pep talks couldn't have effected.

Bronko was excused several minutes before the game ended, but had to wait outside the clubhouse door until admitted by Ray Kniep, Wrigley field hot dog king, clubhouse attendants all insisting upon staying on the field to the season-ending gun.

He Retires Again.

New York, Dec. 26 (AP).—The New York Rangers put on their best scoring show of the National Hockey league season before their biggest home crowd tonight by whipping the Chicago Blackhawks, 7 to 6, before a sellout crowd of 15,391.

In tonight's wide open game, in which neither team made much effort to play defensively, the Rangers had an uphill fight until the middle of the second period and neither team enjoyed a two goal lead until the third. The score was tied four times before Big Bucko McDonald, who did most of New York's defense work, put the Rangers ahead to stay late in the second period.

Chicago's Bill Mosienko was the high scorer with three goals, including one just 45 seconds after the game started and one 34 seconds before the end, and one assist. The most effective player, however, was Bryant Hextall of the Rangers. Hextall scored two goals, both on passes from Dutch Hiller, assisted on another pair by Hiller and Ab De Marco, and was a constant threat whenever he was on the ice. Doug Bentley and Clint Smith of the Hawks also picked up three scoring points apiece.

The Blackhawks will return to Chicago to meet Montreal Sunday night.

BRUINS TIE FOR SECOND

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 26 (AP).—The Boston Bruins moved up into a tie for the National Hockey league's second place by playing the Detroit Red Wings to a 4 to 4 tie tonight before 11,481 spectators. Boston twice came from behind and Don Gallinger's third period goal produced the deadlock. Lineups:

Luckman punted back and so did Cafego and this led to the first offensive show of the contest. Little Ray McLean returned 10 yards with the ball to his 46 and Hamp Pool came in as a special Luckman target. It was fourth down, 2 to go on the Redskins' 38 when Luckman made his first gamble of the game, passing to Pool for 9 yards. Then, on the next series, Luckman made three aimless pegs to Pool. Bob Snyder came in, ostensibly to kick. But he passed and the second Bear gamble would have worked had not Jim Benton dropped the ball. It went over to the Redskins.

First Redskin Threat.

Now it was Washington's turn to flash its first offensive. Wilbur Moore, an offensive and defensive star thruout the game, started it with an 8 yard dash and Farkas eventually made a first down by crossing over midfield. Moore became more troublesome by catching Cafego's pass on the Bears' 24. The attack came to grief when an ineligible receiver touched Cafego's pass for a 15 yard penalty, and on George's next try, McLean intercepted, speeding back to the Bears' 40. But on the play, Dom Sigillo was adjudged guilty of clipping and it cost the Chicagoans 15 yards.

This was where Nagurski entered and on the first play he got 3. Luckman still was pegging wildly and finally Doug McEnulty came in to punt. Cafego returned it to the Redskins' 40. On third down, Moore leaped for Cafego's pitch on the Bears' 25, a 34 yard gain. It again was third down when Joe Aguirre just missed Cafego's pass and interference was called on Dante Magnani, giving Washington the ball on the Bears' 2. Farkas was only inches away on a smash as the quarter ended.

On the first play of the next period, Andy smashed over standing up and Capt. Bob Masterson kicked goal. Less than three minutes later the Bears had the tying points on a march which started after Benton came back to the Chicago 33 after taking the kickoff.

Clark Goes Over.

On second down, Clark slashed for 4. Then McLean took Luckman's pass for a 29 yard gain to Washington's 36, where he stumbled and fell on the soggy turf. After Nagurski plowed for 5, Clark took a screen pass to the left, and with a convoy of four or five Bears, ran for a touchdown. Bob Snyder's kick tied the score.

After the kickoff, Turner intercepted Cafego's pass and came back 7 yards to the Chicago 45. The bears couldn't get going and McEnulty's punt squirted out of bounds after going only 7 yards. With this break at midfield, Cafego passed to Masterson to the 35, but Connie Mack Berry came thru by smacking Cafego for an 18 yard loss before he could pass. Luckman brought back Cafego's kick to the Bears' 31 and promptly engineered the second touchdown drive, which put the Chicagoans ahead for keeps.

Magnani Gets Loose.

Ray Nolting slammed for 7 to start it. Then Luckman and Nagurski paired for a first down on the 43, the Bears' first by rushing. Luckman passed to Pool for 12. Sid went back again to pass, but had to run when the Redskins rushed in. He dodged, cut to his left, and raced 24 yards to the Redskins' 21. After Nagurski powered for 3, Luckman sneaked thru center for 15 yards to the 3. Then Nagurski slammed over Washington's right side for the score. Snyder's kick gave the Bears their 14 to 7 half time lead.

Early in the third quarter, Luckman intercepted Cafego's pass and ran 21 yards to Washington's 36. Only one play was needed for the third touchdown. Luckman passed to Magnani, who wheeled to his left and zigzagged to a score, faking beautifully to get by three or four defenders. Snyder's kick made it 21 to 7.

A few minutes later Baugh came back to lead a desperation rally. At the time the Redskins were on the Chicago 38. Here Sammy's passes failed and he kicked to Nolting on the 3, Ray coming back to the 13. Farkas brought back Luckman's punt from his 25 to the Bears' 44. Baugh passed to Moore for 8, but Luckman grabbed the next one on the Bears' 18 and ran 18 yards.

From the 36, they drove to their fourth touchdown. Sid passed to Magnani, but for a 2 yard loss. On Sid's next try, Farkas held Pool, and every one saw it but the officials. The third time was the payoff. Magnani took a screener, and aided by his convoy, broke into the clear. Only Bob Seymour challenged and the burly Oklahoman fell flat on his face after missing a diving tackle at the 12. Snyder missed and the Bears had a 27 to 7 lead.

Sam Pitches One.

The Redskins took the kickoff from their 39 for a score. It was 16 yards, Baugh to Ted Lapka. Alex Piasecky took one for 22. After Farkas gained 3 and 4, he took a pass from Baugh on the 9 and ran the remaining distance. Masterson kicked goal for a 27 to 14 third quarter score. The Bears were on Washington's 48 when the period ended.

They kept right on going into the fourth quarter for the fifth touchdown. Nagurski hit for 3 and a first down on the 44. Needing a foot for another first down, the Bronko bulled his way 5 yards to the 29. Then Luckman passed to Benton in the end zone and Snyder made it 34 to 14.

The Bears recovered their own kickoff on their 47 and, tho halted by penalties, finally made the distance. Wilson took two passes for 10 yard gains each time. Nagurski's 7 yard smash netted another first down. It was third down, 2 to go, when Nagurski took Luckman's pass for a 9 yard gain to the 8. Magnani swept to the 4, but a 15 yard penalty moved the Bears back to the enemy 22.

Luckman to Clark.

A 5 yard fine was tacked on for too much time in the huddle. Magnani took a screener for 11 and again the Bears were assessed 5 yards for too much time. Luckman, back to pass, ran to his right and with Redskins converging on him, yelled to Clark under the goal posts. Harry took the pass and stepped over. Snyder kicked goal.

After Moore brought back the kickoff to midfield, Baugh put on a passing show, the dying effort of the abdicating champions. He passed to Moore, who ran to the 34, but Washington drew a 15 yard penalty for unnecessary roughness. Then Moore took a pitch on the 25. On the next play, Aguirre snatched Sammy's pass in the end zone and then kicked goal. Statistics:

Halas Finds His Bears Are Still Terrors

"Well, I'm retiring again," said Bronko, who "retired" after the championship game five years ago.

"It's not a game for a 35 year old, and I can't listen to George Halas' songs all my life."

Nagurski wanted the victory football, and asked Sid Luckman for it, but Sid told him, "This was my last game, too, and I want this one to put among my souvenirs. I'll buy you a dozen footballs to have around the house, but this one I keep." And that's the way it worked out.

Some to Go Into Services.

Most of the Bears were eager to get going toward their homes, some of them for brief visits before going into military service.

All were pleased with the extra sugar that went to the victors, of course, but there were other sources of pride.

Perhaps Capt. Bob Snyder phrased the athletic end of it accurately when he said as he ran half-clad about the clubhouse:

"Now the championship is back where it should have stayed all the time. What right have those Redskins to our championship, even for one season?"

Mt. Carmel Is Defeated by Jesuit, 12 to 0

Carroll and Jack O'Leary, the half backs, and Jerry Dowdle and Fred Hendron, a pair of burly full backs, ripped at the Jesuit line. But they were unable to link together their gains, save in the third quarter.

Coates led his mates to a touchdown the first time Jesuit got the ball. Mount Carmel received the kickoff and Gerald Bertucci's kick went into the end zone for a touchback. Carroll picked up 5 yards on two thrusts at defensive left tackle and punted on third down. He kicked against the wind, and the ball went out of bounds on Carmel's 42 yard line.

Pass Play Scores.

On the first rushing play by the Blue Jays, which gained 2 yards, Mount Carmel was penalized 15 yards for roughness and Jesuit had a first down 25 yards from the goal. Coates hit the line for a yard and Full Back Norman Hodgins smashed three times in succession to put the ball on the Chicago 14 yard line.

The New Orleans champions were penalized 5 yards for offside and, on the next play, Coates shot a pass to his right half back, Oliver Raymond, who took the ball running wide in the flat zone and escaped Mount Carmel's secondary in the race to the goal. Hodgins' kick for the extra point did not get off the ground.

Punt to 1 Yard Line.

Midway in the last period Jesuit loosed its second touchdown drive. Coates' punt which went out of bounds on Mount Carmel's 1 yard line set up the opportunity.

Carroll's return punt on third down went out on the Caravan 30 yard line. Hendron plunged for a yard and then Coates shot inside defensive left tackle and cut back. He was stopped on Mount Carmel's 13 yard line by O'Leary.

Raymond and Coates plunged for a total of three yards. Then Coates faked as if to run and shot a low pass to Bill Curry, his left end, who made a diving catch in the end zone. Hodgins' kick for the point was wide.

BY FRANK NORRIS.

Loyola's Ramblers, paced by Dan O'Donnell, won their first round match in the fifth annual Fenwick High school pre-season junior basketball tournament last night by capturing a nip and tuck contest from the host team, the Fenwick Friars, 25 to 21. The victory sends the Ramblers into the quarter-final round tomorrow night against De La Salle, which qualified by eliminating St. Patrick, 33 to 23, in the opening match of the evening.

O'Donnell, who was voted to a guard position on the St. George All-Star tourney team last week, puzzled the Friars with his dazzling floor work and his efficient long range shooting. He was the scoring leader of the game with 10 points which he picked up on four baskets and two penalty shots.

De La Salle Wins.

In the opener De La Salle, sparked by Regis Lisowski who poured in 16 points on seven field goals and two free throws, had too much speed, deception, and weight for the willing but impotent St. Patrick five. De La Salle got off to a fast start and led 10 to 3, 20 to 8, 26 to 14, at the end of the first three quarters.

Before the Fenwick-Loyola game last night Father Morgenthaler, athletic director of Fenwick, the host team, unfurled a service flag in honor of the 310 boys in the services who had participated in this annual tournament. De La Salle led the list of schools with 34 boys in the service. St. George was the only school represented which had lost a boy in action. He was William Stoddart, a member of the 1939 team which finished third.

St. Philip Triumphs.

The St. Philip Gaels held to a 7 to 5 lead at the end of the first quarter by the St. Rita Mustangs, turned on the heat midway in the second quarter to defeat the south siders, 36 to 24.

Free throws by Fred Boseo and Bob Nelson in the closing minute of play enabled Catholic High of Joliet to defeat St. George of Evanston, 22 to 20.

REVIEW OF YEAR TO BE ON W-G-N TOMORROW EVE

A dramatization and review of the last 12 months, titled 1943 in Review, will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. The program will employ documentary technique and use of the actual recorded voices of the men who made history. Prescott Robinson will narrate and Russell Bennett will direct the orchestra.

Beginning Jan. 8, the department of state will be on the air with a series of programs designed to portray its role in carrying into effect the nation's diplomatic policies. The broadcasts will be aired from 6 to 6:30 p. m. each Saturday in January over WMAQ-NBC. It is planned to use brief dramatizations, talks, and round table discussions. Secretary of State Cordell Hull will deliver an address on the last program of Jan. 29.

The Institute of Radio Engineers will hold its winter technical meeting in New York City on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 28 and 29, 1944. This two day meeting will be devoted to the domestic, international, and war aspects of radio and electronic engineering.

Starting with the Jan. 12 broadcast, the Beat the Band musical quiz at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays on WMAQ, starring Hildegarde, will come from Chicago, where the songstress will be appearing at the Palmer House. Broadcasts will originate in NBC's Merchandise Mart studios.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

ARMY REPORTS NEW CUTBACKS IN WAR OUTPUT

Peak for Many Big Items Passed.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—The production peak has passed in several important parts of the military supply program, the war department reported today, altho next year's deliveries are expected to exceed those of 1943 in dollar volume. Heaviest emphasis will be on ships, planes, heavy construction machinery, and signal material.

Far reaching shifts have occurred in the procurement of equipment, not only because of changing combat requirements, but even more because the allies have passed from defensive to offensive warfare.

Construction Almost Ended.

Furthermore, the department said, the army construction peak was reached last July, and no new construction will be undertaken in the United States when conversion of existing facilities can be made to meet the need. Some camps already are being closed as increasing numbers of troops move overseas, and "a slow, gradual, and orderly reduction affecting other army installations may be expected."

The department report and the partial answers to a list of specific questions submitted to Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, director of material, army service forces, present these facts concerning the production program:

Production of heavy trucks, increasingly critical as supply lines lengthen in the combat zones, is expanding steadily.

Aircraft Program Growing.

The army aircraft program continues to grow, with 1944 production scheduled to exceed this year's by 75 per cent in dollar volume.

Signal corps equipment increased 80 per cent from January to November this year, with demands from the expanding air forces and additional combat divisions expected to result in further increases.

Demands for heavy construction equipment and steel landing mats will reach new highs in 1944 to meet requirements for new bases and bridgeheads as conquest of enemy territory moves forward.

Over-all tank production has been cut back 36 per cent since early 1943, due to increased need for ships and consequent diversion of steel, to reductions in lend-lease requirements, and to the rise in effectiveness of anti-tank weapons affecting "the relative importance of the tank as a weapon in various types and places of battle."

Cut Small Arms Output.

Several small arms ammunition plants have been closed recently, and this entire program is now tapering toward a decline of about 36 per cent, dollar volume, from 1943.

Production of small arms also is being cut back. Rifle and machine gun output rose 80 per cent from January to November, but is now being reduced to a level 30 per cent below the November peak.

Artillery production was off more than 18 per cent in November as compared with January, and continues to drop. This was attributed principally to a drastic cut back of approximately 50 per cent in anti-aircraft artillery since the threat of major air attack on the United States has all but disappeared, and to the increase in American air power.

Gen. Clay said production of 90 millimeter anti-aircraft guns has been cut to one-twelfth of the maximum, and that of 4.7 inch and 40 millimeter guns to one-half the maximum.

Big Gun Program Slashed.

The production of 90 millimeter guns has been discontinued entirely at three government arsenals and 12 private manufacturing companies, and cut back at 16 other companies. Production of 4.7 inch anti-aircraft guns has been eliminated at two arsenals and cut back at four companies, and that of 40 millimeter guns eliminated at 13 companies and cut back at nine.

"Most if not all of these plants have been shifted to the production of other war materials," said Gen. Clay.

The medical department of the army will reduce its procurement program substantially in 1944, particularly in X-ray and surgical appliances, both of which will be only 50 per cent of 1943 requirements. It will need, however, more than 500,000 additional units of blood plasma.

Order More Incendiaries.

The output of incendiary bombs and smoke materials will be doubled, but production of other chemical warfare items will decline.

Gen. Clay reported also production of high explosives has been reduced at a number of plants, with the excess capacity in most instances being shifted to output of an additive, or blending agent, for production of high performance aviation gasoline.

The Lake Ontario ordnance plant, designed for TNT manufacture, has been declared surplus and turned over to the army engineers, who are dismantling the equipment. The Gopher ordnance works, a smokeless powder plant, also has been declared excess, but no plans have been made for its use.

Cactus ordnance plant has shifted from manufacture of high explosive to production of ammonia and the aviation gasoline additive.

Production Lines Idle.

"In addition to the above," said Gen. Clay, "22 lines at various plants are not being operated, as the excess capacity of the remaining lines over the designed capacity permits the full use of acid facilities at these plants.

"Moreover, 11 TNT lines have been transferred to making an additive for aviation gasoline."

In its summary of the production shifts, the department said:

"Many of the changes having a far reaching effect on the war production structure are the direct result of all-out attack rather than defensive warfare.

"Other revisions clearly indicate that the tremendous job of providing original equipment for the army has been successfully concluded with future procurement leveling to a replacement basis."

Sarnoff Says War Speeded Big Radio Industry Advance

New York, Dec. 26 (AP). — David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, said in a year-end review today that radio's objective in 1943 was geared toward winning of the war and that "outstanding advances have been made in the use of radio sound and sight."

David Sarnoff.

New instruments and services to be provided thru radio for peace time he listed as: Television, opening a "new era in service"; frequency modulation; radio-thermics, or radio heating; the electron microscope; "personalized" radio, and apparatus adapted for preventing collisions of aircraft, ships, railroads, and possibly automobiles.

Praises War Performance.

"All these new developments," Sarnoff said, "will not be realized in 1944, but with 1944 as the year of expected decision in the European war, they will date from it, as radio broadcasting dated from 1919.

"The new ideas, tools, and instruments of progress that emerge from the war may well give us 1960 radio in 1950."

He praised radio's role in the global war and said it has "fulfilled its unprecedented war time responsibilities."

Military Output Soars.

United States radio production for the army and navy reached 250 million dollars a mohth this year, compared with 30 million a month in 1942, Sarnoff said, adding that radio has "taken its place among the great industries of America, offering employment to hundreds of thousands of workers."

He warned that altho television will be a post-war development, there will be no overnight transformation and that it would not be a "one year job."

OUTPUT IN NOVEMBER MAINTAINS OCTOBER RATE, SAYS RESERVE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26 (AP).—November industrial production remained unchanged from the preceding month, the federal reserve board reported tonight, explaining that increases in munitions production were offset by smaller output of coal and steel.

Altho coal production jumped sharply in the latter part of the month, bituminous output was down 9 per cent from October and anthracite 19 per cent, the board said, adding that in the early part of December bituminous production was at the highest rate in many years.

The steel drop was small and was ascribed in part to a decline in war orders for some types of steel products. The board's machinery index advanced 5 per cent as a result of larger output of electrical equipment and aircraft engines.

The board said federally inspected meat production was one-fourth larger than a year ago and newsprint consumption declined to a level of 15 per cent below the same month of 1942.

Cities Set Up Building Fund for War's End

Reserve funds are being set up by municipalities of 21 states, thru legislative authorization, for post-war capital improvements, for repair of public improvements, and for equipment replacements, the Municipal Finance Officers' association reported yesterday.

Municipalities in 13 of the states were given authority to establish reserve funds this year. These states are Arizona, Connecticut, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and West Virginia.

Eight States Move Early.

Kentucky, Massachusetts, and New Jersey enacted their municipal post-war reserve legislation in 1942, tho Massachusetts broadened its statute this year to include districts and counties. In 1941 California, Michigan, New York, and Washington enacted their legislation, tho Michigan in 1943 broadened its 1941 law, which included school districts only. Nebraska enacted its legislation in 1939.

In general, under provisions of the various state laws, municipal reserve funds may be created by vote of the local governing body, by vote of the electorate, or by vote of the governing body approved by the voters.

Must Use Budget Funds.

Major sources of reserve funds are budgetary appropriations supported by annual tax levies, and unencumbered balances of the general fund. Statutes usually specify the maximum amount of any special annual levy.

Almost every state permits the investment of reserve funds in federal, state, or local government obligations. Statutes of some of the 21 states prohibit the transfer of reserve funds. Others permit transfers to other capital improvement funds, either by vote of the local governing body or the electorate.

RISE IN NUMBER OF RETURNS, TAX PAYMENTS TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—The vast wartime increase in taxation was illustrated today in a report by Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury, on individual federal income tax returns filed since 1940. Following are the number of returns for each year, the number that were taxable, and the taxes paid. Figures covering returns filed in 1943 and to be filed between Jan. 1 and March 15, 1944, are treasury and senate finance committee estimates:

	Individual returns.	Taxable returns.	Payments. [000 omitted]
'40	7,715,660	3,959,297	$ 928,394
'41	14,778,159	7,504,649	1,495,930
'42	25,954,801	17,587,768	3,907,951
'43	40,345,000	35,000,000	15,000,000
'44	44,000,000	.....	18,262,000

Estimated collections for this year include pay-as-you-go revenue on 1943 income.

Of Illinois' 7,897,000 population, 2,089,198 persons, or 26.45 per cent, paid taxes in 1942 on their 1941 income. Of these returns, 1,184,019 persons used the "long" forms for reporting income taxes and 897,829 used form 1040A, the simplified return for use by persons having an annual income of $3,000 or less.

NEWEST BOEING BOMBER NEARING 'QUANTITY' RATE

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 26 (AP).—Production of the new Boeing superbomber, the B-29, will reach "full quantity" during 1944, Phillip G. Johnson, Boeing president, announced today. He said production of Flying Fortresses was 146 per cent higher in 1943 than in 1942, and that December production was the highest in Boeing history, 92 per cent higher than January, 1943, and 10 times that of the month preceding Pearl Harbor.

Rising Expenses, Taxes Cut Illinois Central Profit

Increased operating expenses and larger tax provisions reduced net income of the Illinois Central railroad in November to $1,790,080 from $2,710,929 in November, 1942, the company's monthly earnings report showed yesterday. Profit for the first 11 months of this year was $22,651,003 compared with $21,883,928 in the 1942 period.

Vote to End 12 Day Strike in Cleveland Shipyard

Cleveland, O., Dec. 26 (AP).—Unionists affiliated with the AFL Metal Trades council voted today to end a 12-day strike at the American Shipbuilding company here which followed a dispute precipitated by discharge of a shop steward.

FREEDOM OF AIR THRUOUT WORLD URGED BY N. A. M

New York, Dec. 26 [Special].—Freedom of the air and sea after the war so goods and services can be exchanged without international trade barriers, and so America's commercial and defensive interests can be properly safeguarded, was advocated today by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The association, whose members are responsible for 80 per cent of war production, issued a 95 page report prepared by its post-war committee for 1943. This represented a cross-section of American business opinion after two years of study by a group of 150, headed by Wilfred Sykes, president of Inland Steel company, Chicago.

Higher Standards Sought.

Emphasizing the self-interest of industry in a national economy which functions to provide maximum production, employment, and markets, the report also asserted the need for an international framework of peace and order in which the country's post-war industrial plant can devote its primary efforts to raising the nation's standards of living instead of making war goods.

The report said equal access to airports used in international traffic and equal treatment for shipping engaged in international commerce should be among the most important elements in post-war policy. It said this would help prevent any discrimination against American interests in foreign trade, and prevent economic rivalries from developing into the seeds of another world war.

Puts This Country First.

"The fundamental post-war concerns of Americans must be the domestic prosperity of the people of the United States and the protection of the country against future wars," the report said.

International freedom of the air, it added, should not interfere with the "long established right" of any nation to confine travel between cities within its own borders to ships and planes of its own nationality.

It said aviation and international trade are fit subjects for post-war coöperation thru international bodies of the sort that have operated successfully in the past in specific economic and social fields, such as the international labor office and the international Red Cross. It pointed out that no surrender of national sov

SATELLITE LAWS OFFER A BARRIER TO 100 PCT. LEVY

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

What might be termed satellite laws are important elements complicating the plan of County Assessor John S. Clark to assess all property in Cook county at 100 per cent of real valuation this year. These laws, which edge into the realms of pure taxation, furnish potent arguments against changing the base 37 per cent valuation that has been used in recent years.

Among them are the statutes dealing with state school funds and relief funds, and with the work of the state department of revenue.

A witness who attended a legislative committee hearing last week gave a practical explanation of what would happen to the school system of Midlothian if assessments were raised to 100 per cent.

Aid Hinges on Levy.

The school law grants each elementary school child $13 from state funds. If this, added to the school district's tax levy, is not sufficient to make up $62 per pupil, more state aid can be had. But it is possible only if the district is levying at least $1 on each $100 of assessed valuation.

Midlothian's $1 rate, the witness reported, raised about $11,000 of 1942 taxes. The total cost was $25,000 and the state furnished $14,000. With a 100 per cent assessment ratio, the $1 rate would produce more than the school's needs, but it would all come from the local taxpayers.

Clark's office has investigated and reported that only some $200,000 of state funds is involved in this problem in Cook county and that it will not be difficult to work out a method to keep from penalizing the local taxpayer.

Some tax experts have reported that this school money distribution is a factor in persuading local assessors downstate to keep their assessing ratios low.

Relief Setup Affected.

Township relief laws require that a 30 cent levy on assessed valuation be made before the state will match funds for relief. Here again Clark's opponents see the state stepping out of the relief field, temporarily at least, leaving the burden for the small taxpayer to carry. Arthur R. Kaiser of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce asserted that "every township in Cook county outside Chicago will lose state aid for relief."

There is also some doubt whether Chicago can obtain relief funds without levying at a 30 cent rate; a pegged levy of 6 million dollars, according to attorneys, may hold rather than the rate law. But the townships have no such alternative.

All railroad assessments, and those on the capital stock of utility companies, are made by the state revenue department, of which Philip W. Collins is director. The law requires that these assessments be made at the average ratio of all other property assessments in the state. Last year the ratio was fixed at 31 per cent, with Cook coming in at 37. Since this one county has about as much wealth as the rest of the state, a 100 per cent valuation here would compel a raise of the department's ratio to about 60 per cent.

Figures Called Unfair.

Clark's argument is that the statewide figures are unfair—that every county assessing at less than 31 per cent gets a subsidy in that its rail properties pay taxes at an ultimate rate higher than other property, while counties assessing at more than 31 are giving their railroads the subsidy.

An example in figures may serve to explain why Cook county may be penalized still more if it alone goes to full value. Last year rail property worth $1,000 would be depreciated to $310 and the total tax [within Chicago], at a $10.42 rate, would be $32.30. At full valuation depreciated to $600 by the state department and multiplied by $4, a liberally estimated rate for 1942 in taxes. This would mean that railroads in the county would save perhaps 25 per cent of their old tax bills.

The Chicago Association of Commerce has figured that two properties in Barrington, one assessed in Lake county and one in Cook, have big tax payment differences; the Lake county parcel, assessed at 25 per cent, would pay $150 and the Cook county parcel $222. But the association went on to say that under the new plan the Lake county property tax would be $74 and the Cook county tax $297.50.

It is Collins' contention that while 100 per cent is the fair and legal way to assess, it should be put into effect only when the legislature is in session to revise the satellite laws as well as the tax laws.

Clark has held that he can change the basis of assessment only at quadrennial time—now or four years hence.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Norma Opper, 7848 Oakdale avenue, Elmwood Park.]

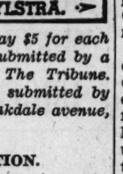
THE QUESTION.

Did your hobby ever get you in trouble?

WHERE ASKED.

Insurance Exchange Building, 175 West Jackson street.

THE ANSWERS.



Lawrence A. Flynn, insurance broker, 4111 5th avenue—My hobby is working with radios. I've made many extra attachments and the other day I tried out a new copper coil I had rigged up. All of the new large tubes burned out as soon as I attached it. Nobody has much faith in me as a radio technician now.

Theresa Fitzpatrick, receptionist, 10446 Prospect avenue — I've been collecting novel perfume bottles for a long time. My mother received a gift of perfume and I spotted the beautiful bottle the first thing. I emptied it into another bottle. The cap was loose and the perfume evaporated in a short time. My mother didn't appreciate that.

Eileen Reynolds, claims adjuster, 655 East 90th place—I wasn't quite as clever as I thought I was, a few years ago, when I decided to make a collection of fraternity pins from the boys. I had at least 10 or 12 when I wore the wrong pin with the wrong date. The story spread quickly and I had to start all over again.

Harry Stein, pharmacists mate third class, Crittendon apartments—My hobby is so fascinating to me that at times I lose friends on account of it. I have a set of miniature electric trains. My friends, especially the girls, feel neglected when I start to demonstrate the trains and forget all about them.

Robert H. Raddatz, student, 10457 Morgan street — My father owned what I considered a rather common English coin. I didn't think he would mind if I traded it for one that a friend owned. We made the trade and I added a new coin to my collection. My father never forgave me for that deal.

Grace Comise, stenographer, 529 West 46th street—For five years I have kept a diary, and I've saved the separate books from year to year. One night the girls from school wanted to read some of it. They read the wrong page and learned I had a date with one of their friends, and I wasn't so popular with them.

MASSED TROOPS SEE CICERO HERO GET ARMY AWARD

Pvt. Stanley J. Kras of 2312 South 49th avenue, Cicero, was awarded the distinguished service cross by Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul in the presence of massed troops at Camp Campbell, Ky., it was officially announced yesterday.

The award was made for extraordinary heroism on Guadalcanal. The citation read that Kras, with another man, volunteered, during furious fighting, to cover the withdrawal of his platoon. The two men waited until the Japs were 10 feet away, then opened fire. Kras' companion was shot, but Kras stood his ground, killed 13 of the enemy, held his position until dawn and killed four more.

Kras is 24 years old, and before entering the army was a foundry man with the Crane company. He was originally attached to the 132d infantry regiment, Chicago outfit.
